Human Impacts on Ancient Marine Ecosystems Torben C. Rick, Jon M. Erlandson, 2008-04-29 An excellent volume with mature sophisticated comprehensive research by leaders in the fields of archaeology zooarchaeology and paleoarchaeology that will be useful to scientists of many interests David Steadman author of Extinction and Biogeography of Tropical Pacific Birds This volume will make a significant contribution to our understanding of ancient human impacts on marine ecosystems which will be of interest to all researchers who are concerned about the environment The editors and contributors are commended for their efforts on this significant research topic Steven R James coeditor of The Archaeology of Global Change The Impact of Humans on Their Environment Archaeology in New Zealand ,2001 Taking the High Ground Atholl Anderson, Douglas J. Kennett, 2012-11-01 This volume brings the remote and little known island of Rapa firmly to the forefront of Polynesian archaeology Thirteen authors contribute 14 chapters covering not only the basic archaeology of coastal sites rock shelters and fortifications but faunal remains agricultural development and marine exploitation The results presented within a chronology framed by Bayesian analysis are set against a background of ethnohistory and ethnology Highly unusual in tropical Polynesian archaeology are descriptions of artefacts of perishable material Taking the High Ground provides important insights into how a group of Polynesian settlers adapted to an isolated and in some ways restrictive environment Fishing in Pre-European New Zealand Foss Leach, 2006 This authoritative volume draws together a broad range of information about pre European Maori fishing in a well illustrated and very readable form The author uses identifications and measurements of fish remains from 126 archaeological sites covering the full time span of prehistoric New Zealand to describe the range of fish caught by pre European Maori explore variations between regions and through time and examine the impact of Maori on the fishery The archaeological information is placed in a series of wider contexts the Pacific background to Maori fishing the nature of the New Zealand fishery climatic fluctuations during the last millennium and the nutritional requirements of human diet and the role of marine food in it The discussion of the technology and material culture of fishing breaks new ground in its treatment of cordage and knots netting and fish hooks canoe design fish preservation and cooking methods Research on fish behaviour towards hooks provides much needed insight into the reason why the rotating hook so common amongst early Maori and other Pacific island peoples was so successful The author shows that pre European Maori had a different approach to conservation of the marine environment than is currently employed in modern fisheries management and that claims of pre European over exploitation of snapper and other species are ill founded An especially important finding is that the average size of fish increased over time following the strategy of taking large numbers of what would now be considered under sized fish New Zealand had super abundant fish stocks right up to the time of first European settlement and all necessary marine food was obtained in shallow waters less than 100 m from the shore Pre European Maori fishermen in New Zealand are shown to have been extremely knowledgeable about all aspects of the New Zealand fishery New Zealand Journal of Archaeology ,2005 Fish Catching Methods of the World Otto Gabriel,Klaus Lange,Erdmann Dahm,Thomas Wendt,2008-04-15 In the sixteen years since the last edition of Von Brant s classic work was published fishing and fisheries have undergone vast changes Not only has there been great progress in the development of new tools materials and techniques but the industry has seen an increasing need to address controversial issues such as declining fish stocks enormous quantities of bycatch and discard and the impact of towed fishing gear on the environment Fully revised and updated to reflect such changes the fourth edition of this widely read and popular book offers A unique comprehensive survey of the evolution of fishing methods throughout the world Approximately 750 illustrations showing the extensive range of methods techniques and equipment used in fishing across the globe Fishing gear classified according to the FAO system Additional chapters Fishing Effects on Fish Stocks and Environment and Fishery and Gear Research All researchers fisheries scientists fisheries students administrators and libraries in universities and research establishments where fish and fisheries are studied and taught will find this book a valuable addition to their shelves Commercial and sports fishermen will also find Fish Catching Methods of the World a fascinating and vital reference

Islands of Inquiry Geoffrey Richard Clark, Sue O'Connor, Bryan Foss Leach, 2008-06-01 Many of the papers in this volume present new and innovative research into the processes of maritime colonisation processes that affect archaeological contexts from islands to continents Others shift focus from process to the archaeology of maritime places from the Bering to the Torres Straits providing highly detailed discussions of how living by and with the sea is woven into all elements of human life from subsistence to trade and to ritual Of equal importance are more abstract discussions of islands as natural places refashioned by human occupation either through the introduction of new organisms or new systems of production and consumption These transformation stories gain further texture and variety through close examinations of some of the more significant consequences of colonisation and migration particularly the creation of new cultural identities A final set of papers explores the ways in which the techniques of archaeological sciences have provided insights into the fauna of the islands and the human history of such places Provided by publisher First Catch Your Weka David Veart, 2013-10-01 Analyzing more than 150 years of recipes and cookbooks this study chronicles the culinary history of New Zealand looking at curious dishes such as boiled calf's head and stewed liver with macaroni to the more traditional favorites such as homemade jams and chutneys It explores what makes New Zealand cooking distinctive and examines how the culture has changed from the prevalence of whitebait and mussels in the 1920s to the arrival of Asian influences in the 1950s and finally to the modern emphasis on fresh ingredients and fusion cooking The Miwa Project Gina Lee Barnes, Masaaki Okita, 1978 A Day in a Working Life Gary Westfahl, 2015-04-21 Ideal for high school and college students studying history through the everyday lives of men and women this book offers intriguing information about the jobs that people have held from ancient times to the 21st century This unique book provides detailed studies of more than 300 occupations as they were practiced in 21 historical time periods ranging from prehistory to the present day Each profession is examined in a compelling essay that is specifically written to inform readers about career choices in different times and cultures and is accompanied by a bibliography of additional sources of information sidebars that relate historical issues to present day concerns as well as related historical documents Readers of this work will learn what each profession entailed or entails on a daily basis how one gained entry to the vocation training methods and typical compensation levels for the job The book provides sufficient specific detail to convey a comprehensive understanding of the experiences benefits and downsides of a given profession Selected accompanying documents further bring history to life by offering honest testimonies from people who actually worked in these occupations or interacted with those in that field

Archaeology in Oceania ,2005 Estimating Live Fish Catches from Archaeological Bone Fragments of Snapper, Pagrus Auratus Foss Leach,1995 Five paired cranial bones and the otoliths of a modern sample of 110 New Zealand snapper Pagrus auratus were weighed and measured and regression analysis performed against live fork length and ungutted weight A number of regression models and alternative steps in arriving at estimates were examined Detailed analysis of residuals was used to distinguish between strategies Fork length could be estimated with a standard error of less than 20mm and weight to less than 140 g For the latter a two step procedure is suggested from bone dimension to fork length and from this to live weight using a sample of 833 fish Coefficients are provided for 64 equations linking bone size to live characteristics To reconstruct a size frequency histogram of a prehistoric fish catch it is acceptable to measure all bones from a particular species even though the number of measurements may greatly exceed the MNI Minimum Number of Individuals for that species Publisher s description The Estimation of Live Fish Size from Archaeological Cranial Bones of the New Zealand Kahawai Arripis Trutta ,1996
