Assistive Technology for the Hearing-impaired, Deaf and Deafblind Marion A. Hersh, Michael A. Johnson, 2006-04-28

Affirmative legislative action in many countries now requires that public spaces and services be made accessible to disabled people. Although this is often interpreted as access for people with mobility impairments, such legislation also covers those who are hearing or vision impaired. In these cases it is often the provision of advanced technological devices and aids which enables people with sensory impairments to enjoy the theatre, cinema or a public meeting to the full.

Assistive Technology for the Hearing-impaired, Deaf and Deafblind shows the student of rehabilitation technology how this growing technical provision can be used to support those with varying reductions in auditory ability and the deafblind in modern society. Features include: instruction in the physiology of the ear together with methods of measurement of hearing levels and loss; the principles of electrical engineering used in assistive technology for the hearing-impaired; description and demonstration of electrical engineering used in hearing aids and other communications enhancement technologies; explanation of many devices designed for every day living in terms of generic electrical engineering; sections of practical projects and investigations which will give the reader ideas for student work and for self-teaching. The contributors are internationally recognised experts from the fields of audiology, electrical engineering, signal processing, telephony and assistive technology. Their combined expertise makes Assistive Technology for the Hearing-impaired, Deaf and Deafblind an excellent text for advanced students in assistive and rehabilitation technology and to professional engineers and medics working in assistive technology who wish to maintain an up-to-date knowledge of current engineering advances.

Teaching Mathematics to Deaf Children Terezinha Nunes,2004-09-24 From an early age deaf children excel in thinking about and remembering what they learn through visual spatial instruction This strength in information processing can be used in the mathematics classroom to achieve better learning outcomes This book discusses ways to teach deaf children about the four arithmetic operations through spatial representation in problem solving Examples for the teaching of fractions and graphs are also included These visual representations are useful to support the children s understanding of mathematical concepts and to promote peer collaboration The teaching programme was tested with deaf children in six schools with excellent results the children in the project made significantly more progress in one school year than expected for either deaf and hearing children over the same time This work was made possible through the generous support of The Nuffield Foundation

Languages and Linguaging in Deaf Education Ruth Swanwick, 2017 Languages and Linguaging in Deaf Education offers bold a contribution towards a new pedagogical framework in deaf education and studies With a primary focus on the language and learning experiences of deaf children this book creates a crucial dialogue between the field of deaf education and studies and the wider field of language education and research

Adopting the Song of Phrase: An Emotional Symphony within Principles Of Hearing Aid Audiology

In a world used by monitors and the ceaseless chatter of immediate transmission, the melodic elegance and mental symphony created by the prepared word usually diminish in to the back ground, eclipsed by the persistent sound and distractions that permeate our lives.
