African Biodiversity Bernhard A. Huber,Bradley J. Sinclair,Karl-Heinz Lampe,2007-04-29 In May 2004 the Alexander Koenig Zoological Research Museum hosted the Fifth International Symposium on Tropical Biology This series was established at the ZFMK in the early 1980s and has variably focused on systematics and ecology of tropical organisms with an emphasis on Africa Previous volumes are those edited by Schuchmann 1985 Peters and Hutterer 1990 Ulrich 1997 and Rheinwald 2000 The symposium in 2004 was organized by the Entomology Department under the direction of Michael Schmitt The intention was to focus on Africa rather than on a particular taxon and to highlight biodiversity at all levels ranging from molecules to ecosystems This focus was timely partly because of the currently running BIOTA Africa programmes BIOdiversity Monitoring Transect Analysis in Africa BIOTA is an interdisciplinary research project focusing on sustainable use and conservation of biodiversity in Africa <http://www.bioteafrica.de> Session titles were Biogeography and Speciation Processes Phylogenetic Patterns and Systematics Diversity Declines and Conservation and Applied Biodiversity Informatics Each session was opened by an invited speaker and all together 77 lectures and 59 posters were presented There were over 200 participants and it was gratifying to us to meet colleagues from 26 nations including Russia Ukraine Japan USA and ten African countries We thank all participants for their valuable contributions The Zoological Record ,1911 Indexes the world s zoological and animal science literature covering all research from biochemistry to veterinary medicine The database provides a collection of references from over 4 500 international serial publications plus books meetings reviews and other no serial literature from over 100 countries It is the oldest continuing database of animal biology indexing literature published from 1864 to the present Zoological Record has long been recognized as the unofficial register for taxonomy and systematics but other topics in animal biology are also covered The Timetree of Life S. Blair Hedges,Sudhir Kumar,2009-04-23 The evolutionary history of life includes two primary components phylogeny and timescale Phylogeny refers to the branching order relationships of species or other taxa within a group and is crucial for understanding the inheritance of traits and for erecting classifications However a timescale is equally important because it provides a way to compare phylogeny directly with the evolution of other organisms and with planetary history such as geology climate extraterrestrial impacts and other features The Timetree of Life is the first reference book to synthesize the wealth of information relating to the temporal component of phylogenetic trees In the past biologists have relied exclusively upon the fossil record to infer an evolutionary timescale However recent revolutionary advances in molecular biology have made it possible to not only estimate the relationships of many groups of organisms but also to estimate their times of divergence with molecular clocks The routine estimation and utilization of these so called time trees could add exciting new dimensions to biology including enhanced opportunities to integrate large molecular data sets with fossil and biogeographic evidence and thereby foster greater communication between molecular and traditional systematists They could help estimate not only ancestral character states but also evolutionary rates in numerous categories of organismal phenotype establish more reliable associations between causal historical processes and biological outcomes develop a universally standardized scheme for biological classifications and generally promote novel avenues of thought in many arenas of comparative evolutionary biology This authoritative reference work brings together for the first time experts on all major groups of organisms to assemble a timetree of life The result is a comprehensive resource on evolutionary history which will be an indispensable reference for scientists educators and students in the life sciences earth sciences and molecular biology For each major group of organism a representative is illustrated and a timetree of families and higher taxonomic groups is shown Basic aspects of the evolutionary history of the group the fossil record and competing hypotheses of relationships are discussed Details of the divergence times are presented for each node in the timetree and primary literature references are included The book is complemented by an online database www.timetree.net which allows researchers to both deposit and retrieve data
