Anastassios C. Antonaras, 2023-01-13 Corinth has been an important site for the study of ancient glass since the pioneering work of Gladys Davidson Weinberg This volume presents the first attempt at Corinth to analyze the entire corpus of glass found in a single area that located just east of the Theater the focus of excavations conducted by the American School of Classical Studies in the 1980s These excavations revealed a north south street that flanked the Theater as well as a series of buildings to its east part of a residential neighborhood ranging in date from the Early Roman to the Early Byzantine period In this volume the first of the final reports from the East of Theater excavations the author presents the glass finds including over 450 cataloged examples of glassworking remains vessel glass and non vessel glass Significantly these finds reveal shifting patterns in vessel types manufacturing techniques and trade as well as evidence for local glass production throughout these periods Included among the finds are fragments of two opus sectile panels evidence of the type of luxurious decoration that once existed in these structures This groundbreaking study provides a tantalizing glimpse into the lives of everyday Corinthians advancing glass studies both within Greece and throughout the Mediterranean Croatian Cultural Renaissance

Hannah-Marie Chidwick, 2024-07-25 This volume explores a broad range of perceptions receptions and constructions of the soldierly body in the ancient world putting the notion of embodiment at the forefront of its engagement with ancient warfare The 10 chapters presented here respond directly to the question of how war was embodied in antiquity by drawing on detailed case studies to examine the sensory and bodily experience of combat across wide ranging time periods and geographies from classical

Greece and Rome to Roman Britain and Persia Together they illustrate how the body in war is a vital universal element that unites these vastly different contexts Although the centrality of the human body in war making was recognized in antiquity a body centric approach to combat has yet to be widely adopted in modern Classical Studies This collection brings together new research in ancient history classical literature material culture bioarchaeology and art history within a theoretical framework drawn from recent developments in War Studies that places the body front and centre The new perspectives it offers on brutality in battle the physical expression of warrior identity and post combat remembrance and recovery challenge readers to re assess and expand their existing ideas as part of a broader ongoing call to arms to revolutionize the study of ancient warfare in the 21st century
