Rethinking Occupied Ireland Jessica Scarlata, 2014-02-11 Imprisonment is a central trope of Irish nationalism often deployed to portray the injustice of an Ireland occupied by foreign rule Irish nationalism celebrates people jailed for resistance to British forces While such a celebratory history resists colonialist images of Irish brutality it also generates nationalist amnesia and nostalgia Rethinking Occupied Ireland takes this history as its point of departure arguing that the potent visual language generated to represent national heroes facilitates a narrow conceptualization of occupation and resistance Irish cinema has long offered a double critique against both colonialist and nationalist historiography Through a study of incarceration in film Scarlata critiques state of emergency discourses and reveals the global relevance of Irish history to questions of terrorism security and sexual and gender transgression in an ever lengthening list of crimes against the nation The films included in this book ranging from 1980 to 2010 explore Irish history from the perspective of those marginalized within or ejected from Irish and British national narratives providing an ideal occasion to interrogate the legacy of colonialism and post anticolonial nationalism Examining Ireland's past in relation to its present these films become a mode of postcolonial historiography and Scarlata argues they are an important component in the reevaluation of what constitutes political cinema and political resistance

Positioning Art Cinema Geoff King, 2019-01-24 Art cinema occupies a space in the film landscape that is accorded a particular kind of value From films that claim the status of harsh realism to others which embody aspects of the tradition of modernism or the poetic art cinema encompasses a variety of work from across the globe But how is art cinema positioned in the film marketplace or by critics and in academic analysis Exactly what kinds of cultural value are attributed to films of this type and how can this be explained This book offers a unique analysis of how such processes work including the broader cultural basis of the appeal of art cinema to particular audiences Geoff King argues that there is no single definition of art cinema but a number of distinct and recurrent tendencies are identified At one end of the spectrum are films accorded the most heavyweight status offering the greatest challenges to viewers Others mix aspects of art cinema with more accessible dimensions such as uses of popular genre frameworks and exploitation elements involving explicit sex and violence Including case studies of key figures such as Michael Haneke Pedro Almod var and Jean Pierre and Luc Dardenne this is a crucial contribution to understanding both art cinema itself and the discourses through which its value is established
