September 10 and was a classic example of a successful set piece battle After the German defenses had been softened up by colossal aerial and naval bombardment and artillery shelling a siege train of specialized armor broke through the outer crust of the German defensive perimeter and allowed two British infantry divisions the 49th West Riding Division and the 51st Highland Division to push through the gap and methodically reduce the enemy strongholds before driving into the heart of the city The attack on Boulogne Operation Wellhit began a week later and was the task of the 3rd Canadian Infantry Division Another set piece assault it was again preceded by a devastating bombardment by RAF heavy bombers which reduced large parts of the city to ruins and a massive artillery barrage Supported by specialized armor two Canadian brigades then moved forward but the Germans resisted stubbornly and it took six days of heavy fighting before the Canadians had subdued all strongpoints and finally forced the garrison to surrender Although both ports were now in Allied hands it brought no immediate alleviation to the Allies logistical problems Harbor installations had been extensively damaged by German demolitions and Allied bombardments and it would take many weeks of rehabilitation before the ports could be brought into use Le Havre which had meanwhile been assigned to the Americans did not see the few first ships arriving until October 2 and Boulogne not until on October 12 As is our hallmark all phases of the battles for the two Channel ports are illustrated with Then and Now comparison photographs The book contains the following two stories from ATB magazine Issue 139 The Capture of Le Havre Author Karel Margry 76 black white photos Issue 86 Operation Wellhit The Capture of Boulogne Author Ian Galbraith 80 black white photos

Kelly's Directory of Merchants, Manufacturers and Shippers ,1907 Africa in Stereo Tsitsi Ella Jaji,2014-01-10 Africa in Stereo analyzes how Africans have engaged with African American music and its representations in the long twentieth century 1890 2011 to offer a new cultural history attesting to pan Africanism s ongoing and open theoretical potential Tsitsi Jaji argues that African American popular music appealed to continental Africans as a unit of cultural prestige a site of pleasure and most importantly an expressive form already encoded with strategies of creative resistance to racial hegemony Ghana Senegal and South Africa are considered as three distinctive sites where longstanding pan African political and cultural affiliations gave expression to transnational black solidarity The book shows how such transnational ties fostered what Jaji terms stereomodernism Attending to the specificity of various media through which music was transmitted and interpreted poetry novels films recordings festivals live performances and websites stereomodernism accounts for the role of cultural practice in the emergence of solidarity tapping music s capacity to refresh our understanding of twentieth century black transnational ties
