Rural Responses to Industrialization Robert H. Bates, 1976 Monograph on rural development and the response of the rural population of Zambia to industrialization and urbanization examines cash crop farming and rural migration political participation and protest of rural dwellers and the resulting changes in the political system etc Bibliography pp 339 to 369 maps references and statistical tables The Rational Peasant Samuel L. Popkin, 1979 Popkin develops a model of rational peasant behavior and shows how village procedures result from the self interested interactions of peasants This political economy view of peasant behavior stands in contrast to the model of a distinctive peasant moral economy in which the village community is primarily responsible for ensuring the welfare of its members Zambia, Mining, and Neoliberalism A. Fraser, M. Larmer, 2010-12-20 This book paints a vivid picture of Zambia's experience riding the copper price rollercoaster It brings together the best of recent research on Zambia's mining industry from eminent scholars in history geography anthropology politics sociology and economics The authors discuss how aid donors pressed Zambia to privatize its key industry and how multinational mining houses took advantage of tax breaks and lax regulation It considers the opportunities and dangers presented by Chinese investment how both companies and the Zambian state responded to dramatic instabilities in global commodity markets since 2004 and how frustration with the courting of mining multinationals has led to the rise of populist opposition This detailed study of a key industry in a poor Central African state tells us a great deal about the unstable nature and uneven impacts of the whole global economic system The Role Of Markets In The World Food Economy D. Gale Johnson, G. Edward Schuh, 2019-07-11 This book extends the discussion of world food problems by giving explicit recognition to the potential role of markets The authors highlight the contribution of prices to the solution of food problems in low income countries for example by providing adequate incentives to farmers to expand production assuring that food supplies can be obtained through trade when needed and giving appropriate signals to consumers They also document the negative effects on food supply and national welfare of the actual price policies of many Third World governments While recognizing the problems involved in defining and measuring hunger as well as in improving the food supply the authors consider the outlook for future food availability as favorable in terms of continued modest improvement in per capita food supplies at prices adjusted for inflation that are likely to continue the slow decline of recent decades One focus of their comments is the positive roles that governments can and should play in the world food economy especially in support of research creation of human capital and provision of appropriate rural infrastructure Developing States, Shaping Citizenship Erin Hern, 2019-05-20 At the nexus of political science development studies and public policy Developing States Shaping Citizenship analyzes an overlooked driver of political behavior citizens past experience with the government through service provision Using evidence from Zambia this book demonstrates that the quality of citizens interactions with the government through service provision sends them important signals about what they can hope to gain from political action These interactions influence not only formal political behaviors like voting but also collective behavior political engagement and subversive behaviors like tax evasion Lack of capacity for service delivery not only undermines economic growth and human development but also citizens confidence in the responsiveness of the political system Absent this confidence citizens are much less likely to participate in democratic processes express their preferences or comply with state revenue collection Economic development and political development in low capacity states Hern argues are concurrent processes Erin Accampo Hern draws on original data from an original large N survey interviews Afrobarometer data and archival materials collected over 12 months in Zambia The theory underlying this book s framework is that of policy feedback which argues that policies once in place influence the subsequent political participation of the affected population This theory has predominantly been applied to advanced industrial democracies and this book is the first explicit effort to adapt the theory to the developing country context

Keeping House in Lusaka Karen Tranberg Hansen, 1997 In April 1993 as part of the March on Washington for Lesbian Gay and Bi Equal Rights and Liberation hundreds of couples participated in the Wedding a symbolic commitment ceremony held in front of the Internal Revenue Service building Part protest and part affirmation of devotion the event was a reminder that marriage rights have become a major issue among lesbians and gay men who cannot marry legally and can only claim domestic partner rights in a few locations in the United States Yet despite official lack of recognition same sex wedding ceremonies have been increasing in frequency over the past decade Ellen Lewin who has consecrated her own lesbian relationship with a commitment ceremony decided to explore the myriad ways in which lesbians and gay men create meaningful ceremonies for themselves She offers the first comprehensive account of lesbian and gay weddings in modern America A series of richly detailed profiles the result of extensive interviews and participation in the planning and realization of many of these commitment rituals is woven together to show how new traditions and ultimately new families are emerging within contemporary America Just as the book is a moving portrait of same sex couples today it is also a significant political document on a new arena in the struggle for lesbian and gay rights In a larger sense Lewin s work is about the politics surrounding same sex marriages and the ramifications for central dimensions of American culture such as kinship community morality and love Lewin explores the ceremonies themselves which range from traditional church weddings to Wicca rituals in the countryside with portraits of the planning the joys and the anxieties that led up to the weddings She introduces Bob and Mark a leather fetishist couple who sanctified their love by legally changing their last names and exchanging vows in tuxedos leather bow ties and knee high police boots In an equally absorbing profile Lewin describes Khadija from a working class black family deeply suspicious of whites and especially Jews and Shulamith raised in a Zionist household She tells of how the two women struggled to reconcile their widely disparate upbringings and how they ultimately combined elements of African and Jewish traditions in their wedding These among many other stories make Recognizing Ourselves a vivid tapestry of lesbian and gay life in post Stonewall United States

Industrial Adjustment in Sub-Saharan Africa Gerald M. Meier, William F. Steel, Richard J. Carroll, 1989 This study charts the history and development of the African adjustment to industrialization in East Africa and examines the input of the World Bank and the African Development Bank Essays on the Political Economy of Rural Africa Robert H. Bates, 1987-04-20 The essays in this volume represent a dialogue between theory and data The theory is drawn from a branch of contemporary political economy which can also be labeled the collective choice school The data are drawn from Africa The book extends the methods of reasoning developed in collective choice from their original base the advanced industrial democracies to new territory the literature on rural Africa Such as extension challenges the power of this form of political economy It also enriches it for the central questions which motivate the contemporary study of political economy are often addressed with unique clarity in the scholarship on rural Africa
