Science With A Human Face:

Forensic Face Matching Markus Bindemann,2021-01-07 In everyday life we identify faces regularly and seemingly with great ease One might assume this to be a straightforward and highly accurate task However we are poor at identifying the faces of unfamiliar people who we have never met before despite the fact that many important everyday tasks depend on this Forensic face matching requires the comparison of two face photographs of a person who is not known to the observer This seemingly simple task is critical for a wide range of security tasks such as person identification at airports and borders passport issuance and renewal and criminal identification in police investigations Despite its ubiquity face matching is highly prone to error even under conditions that are designed to maximally facilitate this task For this reason face matching has been studied extensively in Psychology with the bulk of the research conducted since 2010 Forensic face Matching provides readers with a wide ranging detailed and critical overview of facial comparison and face matching providing insights into its application efficacy and limitations in occupational settings and of current scientific knowledge of this task Wired Into Teaching Jewish Virtues Scott Mandel,1990 Library of Congress Subject Headings Library of Congress,2012 The Routledge Handbook of Semiosis and the Brain Adolfo M. Nakayama, Shinsuke Shimojo, 2010-11-16 The human visual system is particularly attuned to and remarkably efficient at processing social cues We can effectively read others mental and emotional states and make snap judgments about their characters and dispositions simply by watching them Given what is clearly a close relationship between vision and social interaction it has become increasingly clear to social psychologists seeking to better understand the functional and neuroanatomical mechanisms underlying social perception that vision plays a critical role in the development and maintenance of social exchange Likewise vision scientists have come to appreciate the profound impact people as social agents have had on the visual system acknowledging just how important it is to consider the socially adaptive functions that system evolved to perform This book heralds the new field of social vision and showcases the cutting edge and broadly interdisciplinary research that is currently at its forefront Together the perspectives drawn from these various fields offer unique insight into the origin adaptive purpose and cognitive cultural and biological underpinnings of social vision that will help to shape and guide the way we think about and examine social visual perception

Interreligious Comparisons in Religious Studies and Theology Perry Schmidt-Leukel, Andreas Nehring, 2016-07-14

Can religions be compared For decades the discipline of religious studies was based on the assumption that they can Postmodern and postcolonial reflections however raised significant doubts In social and cultural studies the investigation of the particular often took precedence over a comparative perspective Interreligious Comparisons in Religious Studies and Theology questions whether religious studies can survive if it ceases to be comparative religion Can it do justice to a globalized world if it is limited on the specific and turns a blind eye on the general While comparative approaches have come under strong pressure in religious studies they have started flourishing in Theology Comparative theology practices interfaith dialogue by means of comparative research This volume asks whether theology and religious studies are able to mutually benefit from their critical and constructive reflections Can postcolonial criticism of neutrality and objectivity in religious studies create new links with the decidedly perspectival approach of comparative theology In this collection scholars from theology and religious studies discuss the methodology of interreligious comparison in the light of recent doubts and current objections Together with the contributors Perry Schmidt Leukel and Andreas Nehring argue that after decades of critique interreligious comparison deserves to be reconsidered reconstructed and reintroduced 101 Things You Don't Know about Science and No One Else Does Either James Trefil, 1997 Explores scientific questions on a variety of topics including astronomy genetics geology and information technology Methods and applications in: Perception science Anil Ufuk Batmaz, Alyssa A.
