Children's Stress and Coping Elaine Shaw Sorensen, 1993-04-09 In spite of the increase in stress coping research little is known about how stress is actually perceived by children in the family setting This is due in part to the real difficulties involved in collecting data on children's subjective experiences In addition what we currently know about children's stress and coping has traditionally derived from adult reporters rather than from the children themselves Filling a gap in the literature this volume explores theoretical and methodological issues related to the study of children and families in general and to stress coping phenomena from the child's perspective in particular The book challenges traditional deference to adult assessment of stress and coping among children by drawing data from both parents and children revealing significant contrasts between the two Through open ended qualitative measures of children's diaries and drawings the book offers a glimpse into the inner world of the child and gives scholarly expression to the fact that children can and readily will articulate needs and perceptions if given an appropriate vehicle The book's well documented chapters discuss traditional approaches to stress and coping implications for current child and family study specific needs related to the study of children within the family and implications for theory and methods Taxonomies of children's stressors coping responses and coping resources are drawn from the data and examined in detail The book concludes with suggestions for future research and clinical practice Providing fascinating insight into children's actual experience of stress and coping this volume lays the groundwork for ongoing research scholarship and therapeutic practice Academicians practitioners and graduate students in family studies child development psychology and nursing will find this book invaluable in shedding light on the often overlooked culture of children

Stress and Coping D M Pestonjee,1992-03-02 Future historians may well label the second half of the twentieth century as the age of speed Certainly there has been an explosion of information in all areas of human activity and a rapid dissemination of knowledge The result has been a growth in expectations which has affected not only individuals but also larger groups like organisations And this in turn leads to stress Even though stress is a much studied phenomenon it still tends to be defined in vague terms and is surrounded by confusion Professor Pestonjee defines stress as occurring when demands on an individual exceed his adjustment resources While stress is generally believed to have a deleterious effect of health and performance recent research has revealed that a minimal level of stress is essential for effective functioning It is the individual's reaction to stress which makes all the difference and may prove to be harmful Professor Pestonjee has divided his review of Indian research on the subject into three parts In the first section he discusses the concept of stress in relation to ancient Indian scriptures and demonstrates that stress is not just a modern phenomenon Subsequently he discusses stress related diseases like bronchial asthma anxiety neuroses and cancer The next section focuses on the different types of stress experienced by individuals in an organisational setting Available research on various professional groups such as nurses teachers women executives and policemen have been discussed in detail to describe the stress experienced by them The last section deals with coping styles or strategies adopted by individuals to deal with stress The author also examines the various personality and organisational variables which act as moderators of stress Since stress is inevitable the author has highlighted several techniques to counteract stress like yoga meditation and relaxation Dealing with a topic which is of great significance to individuals and organisations in the world today this compendium of research will be of immense interest to psychologists management experts trainers counsellors and research scholars

Christian Couples Coping with Childlessness Auli Vahakangas, 2009-06-01 Children are the focus of marriage in African cultures Marriage is considered full and functional only if the couple has children in many cultures preferably a boy Becoming a parent also contributes to one's full adulthood in the sense that childlessness blocks ascent towards full personal dignity as an adult person in the community As a result childlessness is often a major disaster for both of the spouses It has social economical and personal consequences quite often including divorce This book explores in depth how childlessness is perceived dealt with and coped with in two Christian communities in Machame on the slopes of Mt Kilimanjaro Childlessness is approached through narratives of the spouses concerned and the members of their communities Their stories reveal pain and courage brokenness and strength faithfulness and betrayal Christianity presents itself in an ambiguous light on one hand pressuring spouses to keep up facades supporting oppressive structures On the other hand Christian faith provides childless couples with personal hope in the afterlife that the African traditional culture offers only to those with children This study proves that childlessness is not only a personal but also a communal problem Childlessness and the fear of having no children contribute to family structures and sexual behavior In this way they have a considerable impact on the spread of HIV AIDS in Africa However this study reveals that the attitudes and practices towards marriage and children need not be petrified but rather that traditions can and do change Handbook of Marriage and the Family Suzanne K. Steinmetz, Marvin B. Sussman, 2013-11-11 The lucid straightforward Preface of this Handbook by the two editors and the comprehensive perspectives offered in the Introduction by one of them leave little for a Foreword to add It is therefore limited to two relevant but not intrinsically related points vis a vis research on marriage and the family in the interval since the first Handbook Christensen 1964 appeared namely the impact on this research of the politicization of the New Right and of the Feminist Enlightenment beginning in the mid sixties about the time of the first Handbook In the late 1930s Willard Waller noted Fifty years or more ago about 1890 most people had the greatest respect for the institution called the family and wished to learn nothing whatever about it Everything that concerned the life of men and women and their children was shrouded from the light Today much of that has been changed Gone is the concealment of the way in which life begins gone the irrational sanctity of the home The aura of sentiment which once protected the family from discussion clings to it no more We want to learn as much about it as we can and to understand it as thoroughly as possible for there is a rising recognition in America that vast numbers of its families are sick from internal frustrations and from external buffeting We are engaged in the process of reconstructing our family institutions through criticism and discussion 1938 pp 3 4 Federal Probation, 1982 Social Work Health and Mental Health Steven P.
