Gardaphé, 1996 In the first major critical reading of Italian American narrative literature in two decades Fred L Gardaph presents an interpretive overview of Italian American literary history Examining works from the turn of the twentieth century to the present he develops a new perspective variously historical philosophical and cultural by which American writers of Italian descent can be read increasing the discursive power of an ethnic literature that has received too little serious critical attention Gardaph draws on Vico's concept of history as well as the work of Gramsci to establish a culture specific approach to reading Italian American literature He begins his historical reading with narratives informed by oral traditions primarily autobiography and autobiographical fiction written by immigrants From these earliest social realist narratives Gardaph traces the evolution of this literature through tales of the godfather and the mafia the reinvention of ethnicity in works by Helen Barolini Tina DeRosa and Carole Maso the move beyond ethnicity in fiction by Don DeLillo and Gilbert Sorrentino to the short fiction of Mary Caponegro which points to a new direction in Italian American writing The result is both an ethnography of Italian American narrative and a model for reading the signs that mark the self fashioning inherent in literary and cultural production Italian Signs American Streets promises to become a landmark in the understanding of literature and culture produced by Italian Americans It will be of interest not only to students critics and scholars of this ethnic experience but also to those concerned with American literature in general and the place of immigrant and ethnic literatures within that wide framework
