different perspectives on what constitutes justice and how we might seek to overcome the burgeoning crisis in unmet legal need The book fills an important gap in existing scholarship as the first to bring together new empirical and theoretical knowledge examining different responses to legal aid crises both in the domestic and comparative contexts across criminal civil and family law It achieves this by examining the broader social political legal health and welfare impacts of legal aid cuts and prescriptive service guidelines Across both jurisdictions this work suggests that it is the most vulnerable groups who lose out in the way the law now operates in the twenty first century This book is essential reading for academics students practitioners and policymakers interested in criminal and civil justice access to justice the provision of legal assistance and legal aid

Financial Exclusion and the Poverty Trap Pamela Lenton,Paul Mosley,2012-02-27 This book addresses one of the main causes of poverty financial exclusion the inability to access finance from the high street banks People on low or irregular incomes typically have to resort to loan sharks doorstep lenders and other informal credit sources a predicament which makes escape from the poverty trap doubly difficult This book will be vital reading for those concerned with social policy microfinance and anti poverty policies in industrialised countries and around the world

DFID Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts,2012-02-03 The DFID s transfer programmes deliver cash food and assets such as livestock directly to people living in poverty Transfers can be used to tackle a range of issues such as hunger and malnutrition or access to health and education services in a variety of contexts In 2010 11 the Department spent 192 million on social protection programmes which includes its transfer programmes The evidence heard suggests transfer programmes are effective in targeting aid and ensuring the money goes directly to the poorest and most vulnerable people It is therefore surprising that the use of transfer programmes has not increased The Department only plans to support transfer programmes in 17 of its 28 priority countries It does not have an overall strategy for the use of transfers and its decisions on where to support transfer programmes look reactive The decision as to whether or not to propose a transfer programme is taken by staff working in the country and it is not clear why there are extensive programmes in some countries and none in others The Department does not collect data on all the costs of the transfer programmes it supports and the Department is therefore unable to say whether it is lifting more people out of poverty for every pound spent on transfers compared to other programmes The Department s long term objective is for the governments of recipient countries to take on the responsibility of owning and funding transfers as part of a sustainable social security system However the Department has not been clear about how individual programmes will be sustained
