No Regrets Laurel Fulkerson,2013-06-20 No Regrets Remorse in Classical Antiquity is the first sustained study examining the circumstances under which the emotions of remorse and regret were manifested in Greek and Roman public life Despite a still common notion that remorse is a modern monotheistic emotion it argues that remorse did in fact exist in pre Christian antiquity By discussing the standard lexical denotations of remorse Fulkerson shows how its parameters were rather different from its modern counterpart Remorse in the ancient world was normally not expressed by high status individuals but by their inferiors notably women the young and subjects of tyrants nor was it redemptive but often served to show defect of character Through a series of examples especially poetic historical and philosophical texts this book demonstrates this was so because of the very high value placed on consistency of character in the ancient world High status men in particular faced constant challenges to their position and maintaining at least the appearance of uniformity was essential to their successful functioning The redemptive aspects of remorse of learning from one's mistakes were thus nearly absent in the ancient world

What Makes You Happy Bible Study Participant's Guide Andy Stanley, 2017-01-24 Everybody wants to be happy Everybody is on a happiness quest For many happiness is measured in moments Experiences It's elusive Unsustainable What about you What makes you happy Something comes to mind for each of us In this six session video Bible study pastor Andy Stanley examines the ways in which we tend to define happiness and explains how that definition influences the way we pursue it He reveals that happiness is about who not what and that happy people are at peace with God with others and with themselves He also shows how sin undermines peace because it separates us from God others and ourselves by substituting pleasure for fulfillment things for people images for intimacy and self expression for self control We are often tempted to believe that happiness comes from acquiring things but happiness is actually an outcome of what we sow in our lives We can't acquire consume or exercise our way to happiness but we may be able to serve and volunteer our way there In the end we find that if we live as if it's all about us we will never be happy Sessions include Nothing Plan for It Peace with God Happy Money Shoes You're Not Enough Designed for use with the What Makes You Happy DVD sold separately

Emotion and the Structure of Narrative Film Ed S. Tan, 2013-10-16 Introduced one hundred years ago film has since become part of our lives For the past century however the experience offered by fiction films has remained a mystery Questions such as why adult viewers cry and shiver and why they care at all about fictional characters while aware that they contemplate an entirely staged scene are still unresolved In addition it is unknown why spectators find some film experiences entertaining that have a clearly aversive nature outside the cinema These and other questions make the psychological status of emotions allegedly induced by the fiction film highly problematic Earlier attempts to answer these questions have been limited to a few genre studies In recent years film criticism and the theory of film structure have made use of psychoanalytic concepts which have proven insufficient in accounting for the diversity of film induced affect In contrast academic psychology during the century of its existence has made extensive study of emotional responses provoked by viewing fiction film but has taken the role of film as a natural stimulus completely for granted The present volume bridges the gap between critical theories of film on the one hand and recent psychological theory and research of human emotion on the other in an attempt to explain the emotions provoked by fiction film This book integrates insights on the narrative structure of fiction film including its themes plot structure and characters with recent knowledge on the cognitive processing of natural events and narrative and person information It develops a theoretical framework for systematically describing emotion in the film viewer The question whether or not film produces genuine emotion is answered by comparing affect in the viewer with emotion in the real world experienced by persons witnessing events that have personal significance to them Current understanding of the psychology of emotions provides the basis for identifying critical features of the fiction film that trigger the general emotion system Individual emotions are classified according to their position in the affect structure of a film a larger system of emotions produced by one particular film as a whole Along the way a series of problematic issues is dealt with notably the reality of the emotional stimulus in film the identification of the viewer with protagonists on screen and the necessity of the viewer's cooperation in arriving at a genuine emotion Finally it is argued that film produced emotions are genuine emotions in response to an artificial stimulus Film can be regarded as a fine tuned machine for a continuous stream of emotions that are entertaining after all The work paves the way for understanding and in principle predicting emotions in the film viewer using existing psychological instruments of investigation Dealing with the problems of film induced affect and rendering them accessible to formal modeling and experimental method serves a wider interest of understanding aesthetic emotion the feelings that man made products and especially works of art can evoke in the beholder
