

Teaching is part of a life-long learning process. For effective teaching, teachers must be good learners. This certificate program in college teaching provided me with many opportunities to think about my teaching career. In this section of my teaching ePortfolio, I will answer several questions regarding teaching, ePortfolio, and the certificate program.

What was the most striking or surprising thing you learned about yourself and about teaching as you developed your ePortfolio?

Through the ePortfolio development process, I realized that teaching is one of the most difficult activities I will perform in my life. Knowing or understanding subjects does not necessarily mean I will be able to teach the subjects well. To enhance students' learning, I must create an appropriate learning environment through various teaching strategies and presentation methods. There is no single best solution; I should continuously try new things and improve my teaching skills.

Based on the materials you wrote, what will be your greatest strength as a teacher?

As I discussed in my teaching philosophy statement, I believe in the importance of repeated exposure to a subject. For "repeated exposure," I should prepare well-organized class materials so students can recall previously taught materials easily. My greatest strength as a teacher is my organization skill. I will prepare very organized lesson plans and slides for my classes.

In addition, I always like to explore new subjects – I am very flexible and will change my lesson plans if needed. I will continuously revise my teaching materials. This way, I can provide the most recent, updated information to students.

What will be your greatest challenge as a teacher?

Increasing students' engagement is the greatest challenge as a teacher, especially in the basic lower-level courses. Many students may take such basic introductory courses without strong motivation. As a student, grades are important, of course; however, I want to teach students that applying (or at least recalling) what they learned in their classes, even after college, is much more important than just focusing on class grades.

In addition, balancing between "be strict" and "be flexible" is also a great challenge for me. I want students to follow my policy, such as late work policy. However, I want to be flexible to meet students' needs and interests. Being too strict may damage students' interest and participation in the class, but being too flexible can also hurt students' engagement in the class. I should improve my teaching method to create a good teaching and learning environment.

How did the combination of workshops, experimental learning, assignment development, syllabi construction, and lesson plan creation lead to new understanding about teaching?

The combination of teaching workshops, teaching classes, class material development, and actual teaching provided a great opportunity to enhance my teaching skills. I was able to learn basic teaching principles from teaching classes, apply teaching principles in class material development and actual teaching, and learn new teaching methods and issues from teaching

Carey, 1994-10-01 Play therapy and family therapy both are well established therapeutic paradigms Often however play therapists have minimal contact with the nuclear family of which their child patient is a member Similarly family therapists frequently view young children as disruptive and exclude them from family sessions By combining both play and family treatment modalities as this unique book Family Play Therapy suggests all family members can participate in a therapeutic process which in its inclusion of everyone is more genuine and therefore successful Family Play Therapy encourages the blending of play therapy and family therapy by discussing and demonstrating various techniques and diverse theoretical approaches that will enable readers to broaden their repertoire when working with families and their young children Each author describes his or her own creative avenue of expression such as puppetry psychodrama and sandplay which facilitate the family's communication helping members to find new ways to hear each other Family play therapy and play therapy need not be exclusionary The two approaches actually can enhance and enrich each other While each therapist ultimately will use his or her own ideas in the critical combining of both methods Family Play Therapy offers various possibilities and as such helps therapists to help their family patients to be readily engaged in treatment and to experience therapy as a fun inclusive transforming time together Marriage A Search For Healing Jerry M. Lewis, 2013-06-17 This work reveals those key elements that make for greater bonding with couples in therapy The author believes that improvement in the couples he treats almost always involves greater closeness and the development of greater capacity for intimacy Change can come about in different ways for different couples For some insight appears to play to play an important role Learning about one's central problematic relationship of childhood and its re enactment with one's partner in adult life frequently involves also learning about the ways one subtly recreates this dysfunctional relationship structure For others improvement appears to be closely related to experiencing new ways of dealing with conflict This avenue of improvement relies in part on the understanding but even more on learning the approaches to conflict resolution It is as if these couples need to hear over and over again the recordings that document their insensitivities and consequent failure They must offer Each Other The Experiences That Are Emotionally Supportive And Crucial for emotional and physical health and also give life its meaning Finally the treatment approach outline also has significant effects on the therapists Indeed it may be difficult to know who learns most Involvement as a couples therapist may have all sorts of impact on the therapists and it will come as surprise that it is in the area of the therapist's capacity for intimacy that the greatest effect can be experienced Introduction to Family Processes Randal D. The Responsibility Trap Claudia Bepko,2002-01-15 Bepko and Krestan integrate theory and practice in describing the treatment of families with alcohol problems This book is the outgrowth of seven years of work in which we have made an attempt to integrate our own understanding of alcoholic dynamics within the framework of systemic family therapy Since we share both a commitment to the principles of Alcoholics Anonymous as well as a commitment to approaching problems from a systemic viewpoint it has always been a source of concern for us that the fields of alcoholism treatment and family therapy seem so polarized in their respective views on the nature of alcoholism as a symptomatic process Our hope is that this book can provide a bridge between those two viewpoints as well as some new ways of looking at alcoholism that can be clinically useful and relevant to other practitioners from The Responsibility Trap

Life Witness T. Byram Karasu,2013-10-22 In Life Witness Evolution of the Psychotherapist T Byram Karasu demonstrates how a young therapist can become an expert clinician by transcending his own school of therapy Every young therapist attempts to perfect his skills by anchoring onto a single paradigm and becoming an expert technician of that particular school Within the first five to ten years of practice the so called experiential evolution phase the therapist finds that no single paradigm is suitable for treating all psychopathology The therapist thus begins to appropriate techniques from other schools of psychotherapy and by shifting paradigms synchronizes himself with the patient s mind It is from this synchronization that all his techniques begin to evolve and an expert clinician can evolve into a master psychotherapist The therapist who has transcended his school of psychotherapy now must transcend the field of psychotherapy itself If he wants to address the patient's existential issues as well the therapist first has to come to terms with those issues himself. After all, the therapist can take the patient only so far as he himself has come. Life Witness demonstrates that this formative evolution phase of a therapist encompasses a broad education in literature, philosophy, and spirituality. Karasu ultimately concludes that therapists must find the meaning and purpose of life before they can cultivate an authentic self and become someone whose presence is itself therapeutic. Once this occurs, all therapeutic messages will naturally emanate from within.
