Doing Sex Education Bonnie Trudell, 2017-06-26 Originally published in 1993 This book takes the reader inside the contested issue of sex education by examining how a sexuality curriculum is actually taught to a ninth grade health class and how it impacts on both the teacher and students Drawing on observations and interviews with teachers students and other school personnel to capture the complexity and tension of lived classroom culture this volume illustrates the dynamic complex and sometimes contradictory processes by which traditional versions of appropriate sexual behaviour and gender relations are legitimated as well as contested The book describes in detail the classroom knowledge that is produced by the interactions between gendered raced and classed students and teacher the planned curriculum and the social organisation of the school and community The book also tackles the broader issues of how sex education should be taught and even whether it should be taught at all Sexual Equality in Access to Goods and Services Report Great Britain. Parliament. House of Lords. European Union Committee,2004 The Committee's report examines the EU Commission's proposals to extend EU sex discrimination legislation to cover the supply of and access to goods and services The proposals are essentially limited to commercial transactions excluding aspects such as education public health care media and advertising representation and will therefore be less comprehensive than current UK sex discrimination laws The main impact on existing UK legislation will be the proposal to ban the use of gender as a factor in calculating insurance premiums and benefits Although this suggestion has aroused considerable controversy in the UK the Committee believes that the onus must be on insurance companies to justify any departure from the principle of equal gender treatment based on objective risk assessment More research and consultation is required before these proposals are implemented Sound practical guidelines need to be devised taking into account the implications on future annuities for men and women in the UK market Overall the Committee argues that it is a reasonable objective to move away from using gender as a criterion to assess motor insurance premiums and to seek to achieve a fair and competitive pricing based on other factors Sexuality Education Roger J.
