Edinburgh gazetteer,1822      We Believe the Children Richard Beck,2015-08-04 A brilliant disturbing portrait of the dawn of the culture wars when America started to tear itself apart with doubts wild allegations and an unfounded fear for the safety of children During the 1980s in California New Jersey New York Michigan Massachusetts Florida Tennessee Texas Ohio and elsewhere day care workers were arrested charged tried and convicted of committing horrible sexual crimes against the children they cared for These crimes social workers and prosecutors said had gone undetected for years and they consisted of a brutality and sadism that defied all imagining The dangers of babysitting services and day care centers became a national news media fixation Of the many hundreds of people who were investigated in connection with day care and ritual abuse cases around the country some 190 were formally charged with crimes leading to more than 80 convictions It would take years for people to realize what the defendants had said all along that these prosecutions were the product of a decade long outbreak of collective hysteria on par with the Salem witch trials Social workers and detectives employed coercive interviewing techniques that led children to tell them what they wanted to hear Local and national journalists fanned the flames by promoting the stories salacious aspects while aggressive prosecutors sought to make their careers by unearthing an unspeakable evil where parents feared it most Using extensive archival research and drawing on dozens of interviews conducted with the hysteria s major figures n 1 editor Richard Beck shows how a group of legislators doctors lawyers and parents most working with the best of intentions set the stage for a cultural disaster The climate of fear that surrounded these cases influenced a whole series of arguments about women children and sex It also drove a right wing cultural resurgence that in many respects continues to this day Child Abuse, Family Rights, and the Child Protective System

Stephen M. Krason, 2013-07-05 The child protective system CPS shaped by federal law forty years ago and run on the state and county levels in the United States offered in utopian fashion the hope of preventing all possible child abuse or neglect In response legislators enacted a spate of vague laws that poorly defined such categories as abuse and neglect and granted the CPS sweeping powers to intrude into families often on the basis of nothing more than anonymous complaints about standard childrearing practices This arrangement which followed from the questionable assertion of the existence of a crisis of child abuse and neglect became the basis in theory for the universal monitoring of American families that has resulted in the sharp curtailing of parental rights and responsibilities With overreaching by local and state governments into family affairs the current CPS has not only damaged untold numbers of families but also undercut the legitimacy of parental authority through the continuous threat to parents of child removal In Child Abuse Family Rights and the Child Protective System A Critical Analysis from Law Ethics and Catholic Social Teaching Stephen M Krason gathers essays by leading scholars and practitioners to comment through the prism of Catholic social thought on the plight afflicting American families and the role of the child protective system Here readers will find critical essays on the deleterious effect of the 1974 passage of the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act assessments of current American policies on child abuse and neglect and the role of the CPS within the context of prevailing international human rights principles and Catholic social teaching a survey of the enforcement of CPS policies from a legal and constitutional perspective research data disputing the CPS principle that all parents are potential abusers and illustrating the greater prevalence of abuse and neglect in broken blended and untraditional families and arguments for poverty and unemployment as the prime culprits in the mistreatment of children

Also included are the amicus curiae briefs that the Society of Catholic Social Scientists submitted in two U S Supreme Court cases on parental rights the CPS and state control over the family Child Abuse Family Rights and the Child Protective System should appeal to a variety of professionals as well as scholars from family court attorneys social workers family counselors and clergy to researchers in the fields of social work law family studies American politics sociology human services counseling and psychology and education as well as public officials
