Griffiths,2010-12-18 Globalizing the Postcolony Contesting Discourses of Gender and Development in Francophone Africa is a study of development in the former French colonies of West Africa It takes as its starting point the international community s reporting on human and social development and gender in the developing areas which began systematically in 1990 and which has provided a framework for policy making in this field International reports suggest that the francophone African countries have been experiencing low levels of social development throughout the past two decades These levels fall dramatically when the factor of gender is introduced to the point where statistically speaking francophone African women have had less access to social development than any other population in the world This study analyzes current thinking on the challenges facing gender and development in Africa before moving on to examine the historical factors marking the gender and development profile of the francophone West African region Through an analysis of gender politics in the region from pre colonial to postcolonial times the book examines the gradual incursion of exogenous gender policies into the region throughout the 20th century The discussion concludes by arguing that despite the tendency of the international community and their colonial administrative forebears to pursue one size fits all solutions to what they identified as the main development challenges of the day the impact of standardized solutions remains subject to the unique historical and cultural context in which they are implemented Adapting formula driven policies to unique cultural contexts constitutes a major challenge for gender and development politics in the second decade of the new century Meanwhile the book coincides with the introduction of a new international development agenda in Africa articulated around issues of security and globalization While civil unrest continues to destabilize vast regions of the continent making the prospe

Entrepreneurship in Africa Moses E. Ochonu, 2018-02-05 A tapestry of innovation ideas and commerce Africa and its entrepreneurial hubs are deeply connected to those of the past Moses E Ochonu and an international group of contributors explores the lived experiences of African innovators who have created value for themselves and their communities Profiles of vendors farmers craftspeople healers spiritual consultants warriors musicians technological innovators political mobilizers and laborers featured in this volume show African models of entrepreneurship in action As a whole the essays consider the history of entrepreneurship in Africa illustrating its multiple origins and showing how it differs from the Western capitalist experience As they establish historical patterns of business creativity these explorations open new avenues for understanding indigenous enterprise and homegrown commerce and their relationship to social economic and political debates in Africa today

Generations in Africa Erdmute Alber, Sjaak van der Geest, Susan Reynolds Whyte, 2008 Though long neglected in anthropological research the connections and conflicts between generations are at the heart of social processes In this book sixteen studies examine relations between generations of kin and between historical and political generations The topics range from grandmother s cooking migrant remittances youth unemployment teenage pregnancy Valentine s Day and hip hop music to respect religious virtue gerontocracy memory wisdom complaint and the meaning of tradition Together they reinvigorate and expand the old anthropological interest in generation showing how necessary it is to understanding contemporary African societies

For the City Yet to Come Abdou Malqalim Simone, 2004-10-07 A study of how colonial and postcolonial legacies manifest in African cities and African urban planning Historical Dictionary of Women in Sub-Saharan Africa Kathleen Sheldon, 2016-03-04 African women's history is a vast topic that embraces a wide variety of societies in over 50 countries with different geographies, social customs, religions, and historical situations. Africa is a predominantly agricultural continent, and a major factor in African agriculture is the central role of women as farmers. It is estimated that between 65 and 80 percent of African women are engaged in cultivating food for their families, and in the past that percentage was likely even higher. Thus, one common thread across much of the continent is women's daily work in their family plot. This second edition of Historical Dictionary of Women in Sub-Saharan Africa contains a chronology, an introduction, appendixes, and an extensive bibliography. The dictionary section has over 700 cross-referenced entries on individual African women in history, politics, religion, and the arts; on important events, organizations, and publications; and on topics important to women in general: marriage, fertility, employment, and to African women in particular: market, women child marriage, queen mothers. This book is an excellent access point for students, researchers, and anyone wanting to know more about the Women in Africa.

Historical Dictionary of Sierra Leone Magbaily C. Fyle, 2006-03-27 Sierra Leone was founded albeit under British control with the highest hopes of being a refuge for liberated Africans and freed slaves. When the country received its independence, hopes for the future grew even stronger. Alas, its expectations came crashing down when the country's situation grew steadily worse after repeated military interventions and a devastating ten-year civil war that raged throughout the 1990s. Now that the war is over, there is once again renewed cause for optimism about the country's future as Sierra Leone becomes an active participant in African and world affairs. This new edition is based primarily on recent research on the country but covers the earliest known inhabitants, the colonial era, and the period of independence, including the very confusing turmoil of the recent past. The chronology briefly traces its history, and the introduction provides an essential overview of all the recent developments in the country. Hundreds of cross-referenced dictionary entries describe significant leaders, events, political parties, and movements, ethnic groups, and related political, economic, and social aspects. A bibliography is included to facilitate further research.

Negotiating Power and Privilege Philomina Ezeagbor Okeke-Ihejirika, 2004 Annotation Philomina Okeke-Ihejirika recorded life history interviews and discussions during the 1990s with educated women of differing ages and professions. Her interviews bring up both familiar and surprising aspects of the women's experiences, their victories, and compromises within their families, marriages, and workplaces.

Development and Women's Reproductive Health in Ghana, 1920-1982 Holly Ashford, 2022-12-09 This book investigates the history of women's reproductive health in Ghana, arguing that between the 1920s and 1980s it was largely driven by discourses of development and population control rather than a concern for women's health or rights. Between the 1920s and 1980s, the choices that Ghanaian women made regarding their reproductive health were defined by development policy and practice. Spanning the colonial and immediate postcolonial periods, this book demonstrates that whilst the substance of development discourse shifted over time principles of development continued to be used to impact and legitimise reproductive health policy and practices well after independence The book explores Ghana's pluralist health system the introduction of maternal and child welfare the dominance of the Red Cross in Ghana's maternal and child health landscape nationalist pronatalism and global population activism In order to understand how global iterations of development and health policy impacted ordinary lives in Ghana the author uses evidence from multiple levels including private papers national archives and records of international and transnational organisations Providing balanced archival perspectives the book includes extensive oral history interviews carried out with both rural Ghanaian women and traditional birth attendants as well as with midwives doctors and family planning fieldworkers This book will have an important impact on a number of historical fields including Ghanaian history global health history global histories of population and family planning and histories of development It will be of interest to researchers and students in the history of public health development Africa Ghana and gender

A Place to Live Ann Schlyter, 1996 Be it a house or a makeshift a shared or rented room or a home of one's own a place to live is central in the survival strategies of all urban households In this volume the above authors explore the gendered experiences of housing and housing rights in African countries The collection begins with articles on conceptual and methodological problems in gender aware research The following articles present cases showing a wide variety in housing experiences a variety which depends on urban setting tenure forms stage in the life cycle or other factors There are many differences but also many similarities in the pattern of women not having the same access and control over housing as men have While women are often the main bread winners they are also the home makers in the literal sense that it is women who put intense efforts into making a place home

The Experiences of Ghanaian Live-in Caregivers in the United States Martha Donkor, 2017-11-15 Using the convergence of the impact of globalization and political turmoil in Ghana on Ghanaian women as a backdrop this book examines the migration of the women to the US and their decisions to care for upper middle class white seniors who elected to stay in their homes to be cared for by private caregivers The book explores the attraction of domestic care work the women's perceptions of their job their relationships with their clients and the dynamics of their relationships with their immediate families and families left behind in Ghana It also analyzes the women's interactions with the immigrant community from their remote work sites The book examines widely held beliefs about domestic work as undervalued under remunerated and relegated to marginalized immigrant women of color While admitting that these problems exist the women whose stories are told in the book did not believe that their brand of care work which they called private practice was undervalued or underpaid They also did not think that racism played a role in the concentration of immigrant women of color in domestic care work as widely believed although again the women admitted that there was racism in American society By doing so the women symbolically placed themselves beyond the institutional barriers that constrain the lives of women of color in American society And while it addresses common themes like exploitation abuse restriction of movement etc that other studies of immigrant live in caregiving address this book stands out in two major ways First is its truly transnational character It links the women s background in Ghana to their immigration history and how these two influenced their choice as well as perceptions of care work and then loops their experience of care work back to expectations in Ghana Second the book validates the women s voices as a product of their cultural background thus making the case that the women s choices and experiences were informed by conditions in the US and the cultural baggage the women brought with them The book argues that private care work satisfied women s financial expectations and with that leverage in their families
