Rivalry and Revolution in South and East Asia Partha S. Ghosh, 2019-05-23 First published in 1997 this study reveals the forces of nationalism and internationalism at work side by side in the populous and volatile regions of South and East Asia which make up the 11 chapters of this volume They cover regional security political economy territorial disputes and national unification Problems such as those of Cambodia and the nuclearization of India Pakistan and North Korea create serious international concern while unresolved regional issues force nationalistic and military conflict The irresistible popular pressure for economic integration with the global system often without any corresponding commitment to political freedom underlies it all The cumulative effect of these diverse processes creates an explosive mix of international rivalries and national revolutions which raises the question of the possible arrival of the Asian Century

Does Everyone Want Democracy? Paula L. W. Sabloff, 2016-06-16 Do all people desire democracy For at least a century the idea that democracy is a universal good has been an article of faith for American policy makers Paula Sabloff challenges this conventional wisdom about who wants democracy and why Arguing that certain universal human aspirations exist she shows how local realities are highly particularistic and explains that culture history and values are critical to the study of political systems Her fascinating study of Mongolia feudal until it became the first country to follow Russia into communism and now struggling with post socialist democratization is a model for investigating how everyday people around the world actually think about and implement democracy on their own terms historical contexts Thus the volume will strike a chord with scholars of sociology anthropology archaeology history religious studies political science and economics wherever interest is focused on critically rethinking questions of sacred and sanctified human violence and the values that make it what it is
