Changing and Learning in the Lives of Physicians Robert D. Fox,Paul E. Mazmanian,R. Wayne Putnam,1989-10-06 This book is based on a research project coordinated through the Society of Medical College Directors of Continuing Medical Education The premise of the project was to understand how learning relates to change in order to better design education to facilitate change The study involved 24 universities and systematically collected and analyzed 775 changes from 340 physicians The results provide a vast array of useful techniques and resources for the continuing learner The volume suggests that a qualitative approach to discovering variables of lifelong learning is more productive than the traditional quantitative and correlational approaches. It offers a framework for conceptualizing continuing education which it presents as a highly human creative enterprise. This volume identifies the attributes and dynamics of change and provides a theory which explains how change and learning are related under different conditions. The book begins with a description of an idea framework within which the study is placed. Subsequent chapters provide a detailed view of changes made. The changes are categorized according to the forces that drove the process. Learning is related to a specific cause and effect of changing. The volume concludes with the presentation of a model and a theory of how and why different types of changes occur. Building a

Trauma-Responsive Educational Practice Em Daniels, 2021-12-16 This timely manual presents a new perspective on teaching and learning focused on countering the impacts of trauma on adults' ability to learn. Within its detailed and useful approaches, Daniels provides a road map for building a trauma responsive teaching practice grounded in the principles of Trauma Informed Care and emphasizing the need for educators to develop a rigorous practice of self care. Prison classrooms in particular demonstrate the intersectional and overlapping nature of systemic historical and individual traumatic experience. People who rediscover themselves as learners while in corrections classrooms have a unique and powerful perspective to bring to the work of ending mass incarceration and the role of education and learning in that ending. The concepts and framework presented in the text aim to expand how we define working with trauma. Through this redefinition we better align teaching and learning as counters to the impacts of trauma. As this alignment transforms educational philosophy and practice we have an opportunity to repurpose the nature of education itself and shift toward learning how to learn. Although this book contains content specific to corrections educators or those aspiring to teach in prisons, its concepts and activities are applicable to any environment or situation in which adults need to learn. Adult educators, front line personnel in any public service role, librarians, legal professionals, judges, lawyers, all can benefit from the expertise shared in this book. ren Kierkegaard argued that the most essential truths come to light by asking How. This innovative collection of essays by leading scholars focuses on this questioning. How asking how we should relate to ourselves, to others, and to God, how we should be in the world, how we can become human. The result is a searching original colloquium on what it means to be Kierkegaardian in the 21st century. The adjective Kierkegaardian names many possibilities: ways of philosophizing, choosing, loving, looking, listening, reading, writing, teaching, making art, praying, going to church or not going to church. How gestures to subjectivity, one of Kierkegaard's most fundamental philosophical categories while What signals an objectifying line of thought. The authors of these essays suggest that the crucial Kierkegaardian question is not what we are and ought to do but how we can remain true to the finitude, passivity, and ambiguity of human existence. While this Kierkegaardian how is often acknowledged by scholars, it is rarely thematized directly. Attending to it elicits new kinds of argument and reflection.
