Refugees A World Report:

Museums, the Media and Refugees Katherine Goodnow, Jack Lohman, Philip Marfleet, 2008-03-01 Across countries and time asylum seekers and refugees have been represented in a variety of ways In some representations they appear negatively as dangers threatening to over run a country or a region with floods of incompatible strangers In others the same people are portrayed positively with compassion and pictured as desperately in need of assistance How these competing perceptions are received has significant consequences for determining public policy human rights international agreements and the realization of cultural diversity and so it is imperative to understand how these images are perpetuated To this end this volume reflects on museum practice and the contexts stories and images of asylum seekers and refugees prevalent in our mass media Based on case studies from Australia New Zealand and the United Kingdom the overall findings are illustrative of narratives and images common to museums and the media throughout the world They aim to challenge political rhetoric and populist media imagery and consider what forms of dissent are likely to be sustained and what narratives ultimately break through and can lead to empathy and positive political change
