Social Work Theory and Ethics Dorothee Hölscher, Richard Hugman, Donna McAuliffe, 2023-03-17 This reference work addresses the ideas that shape social work Much of the social work literature addresses questions of theory and ethics separately so that the body of thought that is represented in social work scholarship and research creates a distinction between them However the differences between these categories of thought can be somewhat arbitrary This volume goes beyond this simple separation of categories Although it recognises that questions of theory and ethics may be addressed distinctly the connections between them can be made evident and drawn out by analysing them alongside each other Social work s use and development of theory can be understood in two complementary ways First theory from the social sciences and other disciplines can be applied for social work second considered systematic examinations of practice have enabled theory to be developed out of social work These different approaches are usually referred to as theory for practice and practice theory The advancement of social work theory occurs often through the interplay between these two dimensions through research and scholarship in the field Similarly social work ethics draw on principles and concepts that have their roots in philosophical inquiry and also involve applied analysis in the particular issues with which social workers engage and their practices in doing so In this way social work contributes to wider debates through advancement of its own perspectives and knowledge gained through practice Social Work Theory and Ethics Ideas in Practice offers a unique approach by bringing together the complementary dimensions of theory with each other and at the same time with ethical research and scholarship It presents an analysis of the ideas of social work in a way that enables connections between them to be identified and explored This reference is essential reading for social work practitioners researchers policy makers academics and students as well as an invaluable resource for universities research institutes government ministries and departments major non governmental organisations and professional associations of social work

Social Work and the Third Way Bill
Jordan, 2000-10-23 This lively book critiques New Labour assumptions and implementation of policies related to citizenship communities and welfare reform and the implications of current developments for social work Focusing explicitly on the UK the book nevertheless draws on examples and comparisons from other countries including notably Australia and the US but also countries in the EU and Central and Eastern Europe and some of the concerns and arguments will be appreciated by readers elsewhere International Social Work This book is a well written contribution to both the British Third Way debate and the welfare state literature The book will appeal to upper level undergraduates as well as scholars of British politics and the welfare state Political Studies Jordan begins by establishing New Labour s suspicion of local government framing its policy on welfare Fundamentally there exists a need for social workers to educate themselves as to the nature of this social experiment which New Labour has embarked upon It challenges social workers to be aware This is an interesting and at times challenging book reiterating the history and roots of current ideology within government The work is grounded in a contemporary context of social services and social work practice challenging the withdrawal of social work behind a barrier of managerialism budget control form filling into office based assessment and rationing Finally it offers a satisfying critique to the dominant hegemonic of evidence based practice arguing for research at the level of means rather than the technical Jordan similarly argues in his conclusion that all of the government white papers guidelines etc indicate a lack of clarity of purpose and method social work should retain its belief in a human and creative activity which engages with people s emotions as well as their rights and obligations British Journal of Social Work The New Labour government in the UK is committed to a programme of reform of the welfare state that will pull away safety nets and replace them by trampolines to bounce citizens back into active participation Its regime of tough love will make more demands on those claiming benefits and services as well as clamping down on dependency fraud and crime. This will be done by changing the culture of welfare agencies towards promoting achievement and independence as well as meeting genuine need. In Social Work and the Third Way Bill Jordan provides an accessible and lively analysis of the tensions between toughness and love in the Third Way's political philosophy and the problems of implementing New Labour's programme. He looks at the government's reliance on face-to-face methods for activating citizens and changing their behaviour in many of its initiatives. On the one hand, New Labour places a surprising amount of faith in the ability of counsellors and advisers to bring about the changes it requires, yet it is highly suspicious of the public sector in general and local authorities in particular as part of the forces of conservatism in the UK. Hence it spawns new agencies and projects often with a strong enforcement ethos and regulates the whole implementation process through strict top-down surveillance. In all this professional social work and local authority social services are relegated to a tightly circumscribed role in social care. The author argues for a new, more generous and expansive approach to practice which can do justice to the challenges of change under New Labour's regime and, in doing so, Social Work and the Third Way provides an important and topical contribution to the debate on the future of the Welfare State and will be essential reading for students and researchers in social work, social policy and politics.

Multicultural and International Approaches in Social Work Practice Kui-Hee Song, 2016-09-26

Building upon the author's integrative and interactive ideas about human services fields, this book presents an intercultural perspective of social work education, practice and research with culturally, linguistically, relationally underprivileged minority groups in the local and global communities to show how the synthesis of theories from postmodern social constructionism, multiculturalism and international organization empowerment can be applied when working with Asian immigrant families. This book also demonstrates how a mutual development model of intercultural, organizational, institutional collaborative partnership can be relevant when providing an International Experience for Human Services Abroad Course. Author Kui-Hee Song uses in-depth case studies in the culturally, linguistic and diverse context of human services fields and in the cross-nationally interactive context of host country human services organizations and home university academic administrations. Kui-Hee Song examines the clinical change process of a Korean immigrant family that is working with Child Protective Services seeking to resolve physical child abuse problems and generate new meanings in parent-child relationships through therapeutic conversational dialogue. As the new to this edition, a case of Ming's story is especially the cultural differences between the Chinese immigrant client family and American medical setting where practitioner's personal beliefs were challenged. Kui-Hee Song critically examines specific steps to take in establishing intercultural service learning field placements for an experiential learning education abroad course. Song explores the significant leadership roles and responsibilities of host country human services organizations and home university administrators involved with making a new international human services experience abroad program planning, implementation and evaluation. Specially, Song provides a profound understanding of the empowerment process of a Korean family a conversational partnership in dialogue that invites the clients to speak their loud hitherto unheard voices and enhance a personal perception of competency for action and hope Song also gives a thoughtful comprehension of a mutual empowerment process of cross national collaborative partners differential responsibilities but mutually shared power vision and goals in working relationship that allows for each collaborator to stand together in unity of transactional and transformational leadership behaviors and strengthens the sustainability of the effective international human services experience abroad program
