Captivating Campuses: Proven Practices that Promote College Student Persistence, Engagement and Success Nicholas D. Young, Christine N. Michael, Jennifer A. Smolinski, 2019-07-15 What role does student engagement play in educational achievement on the post secondary campus And what factors affect each student's ability and motivation to engage with the full college experience both in and outside of the classroom It is now widely acknowledged that post secondary institutions must not only focus on facilitating the transition from high school to college but that they must also make a concerted effort to listen to the needs and experiences of their students in order to achieve maximal involvement within the college environment. Students need to be captivated by at least one element of their college experience whether that be in the classroom or extracurricular activities in order to form a bond with their institution and feel motivated and attached enough to put in the hard work until graduation. Campuses that capture their students' interests and passions provide spaces for them to develop as individuals and opportunities to form meaningful professional and personal relationships have a far greater chance of both retaining their students to graduation and helping them develop as whole human beings who will contribute. This book studies the many facets of student engagement as it attempts to define student engagement, differentiating it from involvement, and covers seminal theories of college student engagement. The contributions to this volume discuss the powerful role that relationships play in helping students identify their interests and talents and other examples of best practice when it comes to creating engaging classroom experiences such as collaborative projects with peers, study abroad, and learning that is situated in real life problems that are of importance to the student.

This volume reviews contemporary research, measurement instruments, and practices in the assessment of civic engagement in higher education, including meta-analyses of students, faculty, institutions, and higher education systems at large, targeted case studies of campus-specific practices, and efficient and effective ways to gauge the influence of civic engagement on higher education policy, practices, and outcomes. It includes quantitative and qualitative approaches to measuring the effort, importance, and impact of students' and institutions' involvement in community service, community engagement, civic engagement, and service learning on a college campus. The research ranges between decisions made either as part of institutional agendas, curricular enhancements, or student life initiatives and student and professor involvement in civic engagement activities and supportive attitudes.
