Setting Priorities For Environment Management An Application To The Mining Sector In Bolivia:

Setting Priorities for Environmental Management Wendy S. Ayres, Kathleen A. Anderson, David Hanrahan, 1998 Mining and industrial activities if poorly managed can damage the environment and leave behind contaminated soils polluted groundwater and waste material The two papers in this volume illustrate the methodologies developed for selecting priority sites for remediating environmental problems due to mining It also describes the high priority investments that would provide the greatest benefits for the available resources The methodologies have broad application and could be used to identify priority remediation investments in other sectors where past activities have led to environmental problems An Environmental Study of Artisanal, Small, and Medium Mining in Bolivia, Chile, and Peru Gary McMahon, 1999-01-01 Mining exploration investment in the Latin American and Caribbean region has increased 130 percent in the last five years a figure which increases to 500 percent if Chile is excluded Governments have revamped mining legislation to enable private investment while becoming more sensitive to environmental factors In light of this legislation this report examines the environmental effects of artisanal small and medium mines in three Latin American Countries Bolivia Chile and Peru Four of the most important elements to be considered are The age of the mine Management of tailings The heterogeneity of the artisanal and small mine sectors The increasing need to take cultural considerations into account in the decision making process The paper contains results of the studies on the various mining sectors strategy and policy recommendations and country study summaries Environmental Management and Institutions in OECD Countries Magda Lovei, Charles Weiss, 1998 As environmental protection is attracting increasing political attention and public support many developing countries are designing and putting into practice environmental institutions This study analyzes the experience of several OECD countries in order to identify factors that influence the role and success of environmental management possible causes of the discrepancy between national environmental objectives and actual performance and implications of lessons learned and recommendations for countries that are in the process of establishing or redesigning their environmental management systems Economic Reform and Environmental Performance in Transition Economies Gordon Hughes, Magda Lovei, 1999-01-01 transition has proved to be a much longer and more difficult process than most had anticipated and progress has varied By 1998 only one country Poland which embarked on economic reform before the rest of the region had reestablished sustained economic growth and surpassed the pretransition level of real gross domestic product GDP From Economic Reform and Environmental Performance in Transition Economies Most global economy and environmental watchers expect the transition to a market economy to yield environmental benefits The changing incentives that a market economy introduces should foster more efficient production better use of resources and increased community input The advanced reformers of the Central and Eastern European CEE countries proved this to be the case They improved energy efficiency and reduced emissions intensity of pollutants The slower reforming countries of the Newly Independent States NIS also experienced lower pollution However that downturn coincided with the economic decline which shut down many major polluters This report reviews progress in environmental trends since transition began It looks at air and water pollution and health indicators in the trends and in light of the environmental issues identified in the Environmental Action Programme for Central and Eastern Europe It continues and builds on the World Bank s work in analyzing the environmental effects of transition restructuring and privatization with a view to identifying priority areas for investment and policy initiatives The report will interest environmental policy makers and practitioners

Assessment of Corporate Sector Value and Vulnerability Dale F. Gray,1999-01-01 Once equity has fallen below a certain threshold for a significant period of time it triggers a suspension of debt payments and distorts incentives for equity holds and managers But what is a significant period of time You or I could pay a 10 million annual mortgage payment for a day or two but not two or three months Similarly owners and managers can withstand short periods of illiquidity or negative equity but not longer ones At some point in time the inability to meet obligations and perception of continued difficulties creates a system wide breakdown in debt payments The relationship between the corporate sector and a country s macroeconomy is receiving increased attention from policymakers and investors especially those affected by the Asian crisis Recent crises have pointed out the importance of improving our understanding of the links between the corporate sector the financial sector and the macroeconomy in a world of volatile capital flows Assessing the vulnerability of the corporate sector and its links to financial and exchange rate crisis is important for both improved surveillance and in the design of policies in crisis countries However the analytical and operational tools available to policymakers and investors to analyze this problem have been limited This Technical Paper was prepared as part of an initiative to develop new frameworks which can integrate state of the art corporate finance principles macroeconomic and financial sector analysis An innovative yet practical framework is provided which has numerous applications for assessing corporate sector vulnerability design of corporate restructuring strategies as well as financial sector and macroeconomic policies It will be of interest to bankers economic policymakers corporate finance specialists and macroeconomists
