Hayden,2016-03-03 The focus of this volume is the intersection and the cross fertilization between the travel narrative literary discourse and the New Philosophy in the early modern to early eighteenth century historical periods Contributors examine how in an historical era which realized an emphasis on nation and during a time when exploration was laying the foundation for empire science and the literary discourse of the travel narrative become intrinsically linked Together the essays in this collection point out the way in which travel narratives reflect the anxiety from changes brought about through the discoveries of the new knowledge and the way this knowledge in turn provided a new and more complex understanding of the expanding world in which the writers lived The worlds in this text are many for no world is monomial from the antipodes to the New World from the heavens to the seas and from fictional worlds to the world which contains and or constructs one s nation and empire All of these essays demonstrate the manner in which the New Philosophy dramatically changed literary discourse The New Cambridge Bibliography of English Literature George Watson,Ian Roy Willison,1974 Women and Science, 17th Century to Present Véronique Molinari,2011-05-25 If women s interest and participation in the advancement of science has a long history the academic study of their contributions is a far more recent phenomenon to be placed in the wake of second wave feminism in the 1970s and the advent of women's studies which have since then given impetus to research on female figures in specific fields or more generally speaking on women's battles to gain access to knowledge education and recognition in the scientific world. These studies while providing a useful insight into the contributions of a few more or less well known figures have mostly focused however on the obstacles that women have had to overcome in the field of education and employment or in their quest for acknowledgement by their male peers. The aim of this volume is to try and approach the issue from a different and more comprehensive point of view taking into account not only the position of women in science but also the link between women and science through the analysis of various kinds of discourse and representation such as the press poetry fiction biographies and autobiographies or professional journals including that of women themselves. The questions of the presentation or re presentation of science by women are thus at the core of this study as well as that of the portrayal and self portrayal of women in the sciences whether in the educational or the professional field. A final part examines how women are represented in science fiction which like science itself has traditionally been a field dominated by men.

Materials in Eighteenth-century Science Ursula Klein, Wolfgang Lefèvre, 2007. In this history of materials the authors link chemical science with chemical technology challenging our current understandings of objects in the history of science and the distinction between scientific and technological objects. They further show that chemistry's experimental production and understanding of materials changed over time first in the decades around 1700 and then around 1830 when mundane materials became clearly distinguished from true chemical substances.

Philosophy, Science, and History Lydia Patton, 2014-06-27. Philosophy Science and History: A Guide and Reader is a compact overview of the history and philosophy of science that aims to introduce students to the groundwork of the field and to stimulate innovative research. The general introduction focuses on scientific theory change assessment discovery and pursuit. Part I of the Reader begins with classic texts in the history of logical empiricism including Reichenbach's discovery justification distinction. With careful reference to Kuhn's analysis of scientific revolutions the section provides key texts analyzing the relationship of HOPOS to the history of science including texts by Santayana Rudwick and Shapin and Schaffer. Part II provides texts illuminating central debates in the history of science and its philosophy. These include the history of natural philosophy Descartes Newton Leibniz Kant Hume and du Châtelet in a new translation induction and the logic of discovery including the Mill Whewell debate Duhem and Hanson and catastrophism versus uniformitarianism in natural history Playfair on Hutton and Lyell de Buffon Cuvier and Darwin. The editor's introductions to each section provide a broader perspective informed by contemporary research in each area including related topics. Each introduction furnishes proposals including thematic bibliographies for innovative research questions and projects in the classroom and in the field.

Patronage and Royal Science in Seventeenth-Century France David S. Lux, 2019-06-30. A unique study in the culture of seventeenth century French science. Patronage and Royal Science in Seventeenth Century France focuses on the brief revolutionary period 1650-1680 that launched Europe's New Age of Academies. David S. Lux provides a lively account of one of the most intriguing scientific institutions in Louis XIV's France: the Académie de Physique de Caen, organized in 1662. Lux investigates why this promising institution, with a talented membership and sympathetic private patrons, foundered after it was provided royal support, finally to close its doors in 1672. Drawing upon hitherto unexploited archival materials, the author discovers the circumstances of one institution's failure and develops a provocative new interpretation of the shift from privately funded to state-funded science in France during the second half of the seventeenth century. Lux provides a rare view of the everyday concerns of seventeenth-century science as it was practiced by those other than the immortals of the Scientific Revolution. Patronage and Royal Science in Seventeenth-Century France will interest sociologists of science and philosophers of science as well as historians, particularly those who work on early modern science and scientific institutions and French cultural history.
