increasing public interest and demand for information archaeologists are starting to collaborate with historians educators interpreters museum curators exhibit designers landscape architects and other cultural resource specialists to devise the best strategies for translating an explosion of archaeological information for the public In turn some communities are partnering with archaeologists to become active players in the excavation interpretation and preservation of their heritage The last decade has witnessed numerous applications of public interpretation and outreach models and an increased interest in establishing partnerships between professional practitioners in public interpretation and educational institutions such as museums and schools These developments have occurred in the context of a realization that community based partnerships are the most effective mechanism for long term success It is clear that there is a need for a volume that addresses these latest trends and provides case studies of successful partnerships The Happy Valley Ken Nicolson, 2010-06-01 Hong Kong s oldest Western cemetery garden is located in Happy Valley This history and tour highlights the need for urgent action to conserve the built and natural heritage resources of this important cultural landscape The author challenges the reader to reconsider the basic approach to heritage conservation adopted in Hong Kong where a false dichotomy persists between natural and built heritage conservation initiatives The Hong Kong Cemetery provides an excellent example of a precious cultural landscape which is deteriorating because simplistic approaches to site management have failed to understand and protect the complex interrelationship between the natural flora mid fauna habitats and built monuments and Memorials heritage resources The first three chapters introduce the cemetery garden concept as it evolved in early nineteenth century Europe and was eventually established in Hong Kong by the British The second half of the book provides a self guided tour of the cemetery highlighting its resources as well as explaining the main conservation problems and possible solutions to protect the cemetery

The Revival Styles in American Memorial Art Peggy McDowell, Richard E.
