Gender, Sexuality, and Material Objects in English Renaissance Verse Pamela S. Hammons, 2016-12-05 An important contribution to recent critical discussions about gender sexuality and material culture in Renaissance England this study analyzes female and male authored lyrics to illuminate how gender and sexuality inflected sixteenth and seventeenth century poets conceptualization of relations among people and things human and non human subjects and objects Pamela S Hammons examines lyrics from both manuscript and print collections including the verse of authors ranging from Robert Herrick John Donne and Ben Jonson to Margaret Cavendish Lucy Hutchinson and Aemilia Lanyer and situates them in relation to legal theories autobiographies biographies plays and epics Her approach fills a crucial gap in the conversation which has focused upon drama and male authored works by foregrounding the significance of the lyric and women's writing Hammons exposes the poetic strategies sixteenth and seventeenth century English women used to assert themselves as subjects of property and economic agents in relation to material items ranging from personal property to real estate despite the dominant patriarchal ideology insisting they were ideally temporary passive vehicles for men's wealth The study details how women imagined their multiple complex interactions with the material world the author shows that how a woman poet represents herself in relation to material objects is a flexible fiction she can mobilize for diverse purposes Because this book analyzes men's and women's poems together it isolates important gendered differences in how the poets envision human subjects use control possession and ownership of things and the influences effects and power of things over humans It also adds to the increasing evidence for the pervasiveness of patriarchal anxieties associated with female economic agency in a culture in which women were often treated as objects

Thames Mudlarking Jason Sandy, Nick Stevens, 2021-02-18 A beautifully illustrated introduction to mudlarking which tells the incredible forgotten history of London through objects found on the foreshore of the River Thames Often seen combing the shoreline of the River Thames at low tide groups of archaeology enthusiasts known as mudlarks continue a tradition that dates back to the eighteenth century Over the years they have found a vast array of historical artefacts providing glimpses into the city's past Objects lost or discarded centuries ago from ancient river offerings such as the Battersea Shield and Waterloo Helmet to seventeenth century trade tokens and even medals for bravery have been discovered in the river This book explores a fascinating assortment of finds from prehistoric to modern times which collectively tell the rich and illustrious story of London and its inhabitants illustrated with an array of photographs taken of the items in situ in the mud and gravel of the Thames estuary at the same time both gritty and glimmering

Convicts and the Arts Professor Max Howell, Dr Lingyu Xie, 2013-11-01 There are a considerable number of books on the art of the convicts so Convicts Art has been covered reasonably well but art is only one facet of the arts that has been examined to any extent This book concerns itself with Convicts the Arts This book then endeavors to look at the convicts contribution to the arts and demonstrates without doubt that the convicts made a significantly broader contribution to the culture of Australia than previously thought There is a common misconception that all convicts were immediately institutionalised in a cell and convict culture was solely a prison culture It needs reinforcing that when the First Fleet arrived there were no prisons in Australia no cells where they could put the convicts The early governors and principal authorities quite logically endeavoured to use whatever skills the convicts had So artists generally forgers were placed with those who were interested in recording a visual history of this new land Among the convicts were bricklayers house painters jewelers silversmiths goldsmiths and so on and some of them made significant contributions to the emerging society Some of these contributions will be developed herein This work endeavors to examine the convicts contribution to the arts in Australia in areas like the writing of novels poetry autobiographies sculpture theatre music architecture jewelry the press decorative arts and pottery
