Managing Schools In Hard Times:

School Budgeting for Hard Times William K. Poston, 2011 From the publisher Improve your school s productivity with existing resources by implementing performance based budgeting Included are step by step instructions for how to do more with less Managing Schools in Hard Times Stanton F. Leggett, Paul Abramson, 1981 Schooling Reform In Hard Times Bob Linguard, John Knight, Paige Porter, 2003-09-02 Based on research carried out under Labour governments throughout the 1990s in Western Australia the authors consider the social political and economic conditions under which policy is formulated understood and enacted They look at how the state structure affects the content and nature of policy statements and provide an outline of the history of policy developments and point to future possibilities and probabilities Outcomes within funding ceilings accountability frameworks and national guidelines are but some of the changes referred to The emergence of competency based standards in education and training in schools workplaces and the professions is evident throughout Australia at state level but the concern is whether issues of education should be played out within the state and outside civil society The authors argue for the mediation in implementation of policy rather than a lambasting of policy formulation and implementation This text is intended for heads of education departments PGCE BEd MEd students and researchers interested in education policy and planning Education policymakers and educational historians Managing the Residential Treatment Center in Troubled Times Gordon Northrup, 1994 Here is an informative guide to help directors and staff of residential treatment centers RTCs cope with the financial and administrative problems resulting from today s financially turbulent times Financial problems have closed some centers and managed care or other health care changes will soon reach others Managing the Residential Treatment Center in Troubled Times deals directly with current difficult financial and management problems in RTCs and presents practical advice discussions of current problems and possible solutions Authors explore a wide range of topics from dealing with community hostility to planning for the future Specifically chapters discuss the application of total quality management to RTCs reasons and rationale for the decline of residential establishments in England how changes in an RTC affect the youngsters who live there privatization and purchase of service contracting profit vs nonprofit organizations one agency s experience in establishing an RTC in a resistant neighborhood Managing the Residential Treatment Center in Troubled Times offers fresh perspectives and alternatives for professionals involved with RTCs including directors government regulators social and child care workers and psychiatrists and psychologists Public Schools in Hard Times David B. Tyack, Robert Lowe, Elisabeth Hansot, 1984 In the first social history of what happened to public schools in those years of the locust the authors explore the daily experience of schoolchildren in many kinds of communities the public school students of working class northeastern towns the rural black children of the South the prosperous adolescents of midwestern suburbs How did educators respond to the fiscal crisis and why did Americans retain their faith in public schooling during the cataclysm The authors examine how New Dealers regarded public education and the reaction of public school people to the distinctive New Deal style in programs such as the National Youth Administration. They illustrate the story with photographs, cartoons, and vignettes of life behind the schoolhouse door. Moving from that troubled period to our own, the authors compare the anxieties of the depression decade with the uncertainties of the 1970s and 1980s. Heirs to an optimistic tradition and trained to manage growth, school staff have lately encountered three shortages: of pupils, money, and public confidence. Professional morale has dropped as expectations and criticism have mounted. Changes in the governing and financing of education have made planning for the future even riskier than usual. Drawing on the experience of the 1930s to illuminate the problems of the 1980s, the authors lend historical perspective to current discussions about the future of public education. They stress the basic stability of public education while emphasizing the unfinished business of achieving equality in schooling.

A Guide to Managing and Leading School Operations Jerome Cranston, 2018-02-23 The job of school leader has become progressively more demanding. The role includes increasingly complex problems to be solved and increasingly deep piles of paperwork to complete. Unfortunately, the managing of employees, the preparing and justifying of resource, both personnel and financial projections, and the complexities involved in operating facilities safely and legally are the most frequently mentioned reasons for why school leaders begin to question their career choice. And while faculties and colleges of education, as well as principals' professional associations, offer courses and workshops, very few adequately address the gaps that exist between theory and practice in a way that would mitigate this reticence to lead in this climate.

A Principled Guide to Managing and Leading School Operations fills a gap in the training of educational leaders by orienting them to the vitally important business operations required to run a school. This book therefore is for all school leaders who wish they had been given a school operations field manual, and it is for those who prepare them, who might wish to rebalance anew the current propensity of principal preparation programs that blindly privilege leadership identity over developing the requisite management acumen teachers, parents, and the public expect.

The New School Management by Wandering Around William A. Streshly, Susan P. Gray, Larry E. Frase, 2012-04-03 Achieve success step by step. The topic of management by wandering around is not new, but the authors' approach is fresh and timely. This current rendition, based on the original work by Frase and Hetzel, gives new and seasoned administrators smart, practical advice about what to do in critical school leadership circumstances. This text cites more than 20 well-constructed research studies that show how management by wandering around produces desirable outcomes, including higher student achievement, improved school culture, higher teacher efficacy. Topics covered include developing meeting agendas, supervising instruction, dealing with marginal teachers, and creating safe campuses.

101 Solutions for School Counselors and Leaders in Challenging Times Stuart F. Chen-Hayes, Melissa S. Ockerman, E.C.M. Mason, 2013-11-09 School counseling strategies that promote student success. So much is expected to prepare today's students for success: academic achievement, career and college readiness, emotional and social competency, just to name a few.

School counselors can make an enormous positive difference in children's lives. In a succinct Q & A format, the authors provide school counselors and educational leaders with 101 solutions to common counseling issues across the K-12 spectrum on topics ranging from data-driven counseling to bullying, collaboration, and equity. Stories of school counselors and educational leaders who have successfully implemented these solutions. Numerous print and digital resources for further exploration.

Leading Schools in Challenging Times Bruce Anthony Jones, Anthony Rolle, 2016-03-01 Over the past 30 years, our public school system has received an unprecedented amount of attention as this concerns methods of school reform and policy strategies for bringing about this reform. During the 1980s, the emphasis of school reform was on transparency through school-community partnerships. Business and philanthropy, for example, became involved with issues of schooling that were unheard of prior to this period. The 1980s also gave rise to issues of school finance and student performance that went beyond traditional views that tended to focus on financial adequacy to views that focused more on school finance arrangements that would lead to actual equitable outcomes in student performance. The 1990s witnessed the emergence of the comprehensive school reform movement whereby curriculum outsourcing occurred at rates that had never occurred before. With this movement, the role of teachers and school leaders in the creation of school curriculum diminished as school districts increasingly purchased vendor-related curriculum packages which included teacher and leader training modules and methods of curriculum assessment. On the heels of the increasing tendency of school districts to outsource school curriculum to curriculum vendors came a rise in demands for school accountability and school outcomes. This was particularly evident with the passage of the No Child Left Behind Act (NCLB) in 2001. NCLB was also developed within a political context that called for demands in the academic improvement of schools and school districts that housed historically disenfranchised students. These demands were particularly important as the nation experienced and continues to experience dramatic increases in student racial and ethnic diversity. This volume, entitled Leading Schools in Challenging Times: Eye to the Future, discusses varying types of school leadership in the context of key topics that have been at the center of ongoing school reform in the United States. These topics include challenges, opportunities, and issues associated with our administrator and teacher leadership pipeline, preparation and development, leadership and school finance reform, leadership and changing student and population demographics, leadership and the role of community issues, leadership policy, public accountability, and school performance outcomes. The authors also explicate these issues with a view to the future and the status of leadership in our public school system.
