Cities is the first published history of the profound transformations of British city centres in the 1960s. It has often been said that urban planners did more damage to Britain's cities than even the Luftwaffe had managed and this study details the rise and fall of modernist urban planning revealing its origins and the dissolution of the cross party consensus before the ideological smearing that has ever since characterized the high rise towers, dizzying ring roads and concrete precincts that were left behind. The rebuilding of British city centres during the 1960s drastically affected the built form of urban Britain including places ranging from traditional cathedral cities through to the decaying towns of the industrial revolution. Boom Cities uncovers both the planning philosophy and the political, cultural and legislative background that created the conditions for these processes to occur across the country. Boom Cities reveals the role of architect planners in these transformations. The volume also provides an unconventional account of the end of modernist approaches to the built environment showing it from the perspective of planning and policy elites rather than through the emergence of public opposition to planning.

Industrial History from the Air Kenneth Hudson, 1984-11-22 This is the first book to explore the exceptional opportunities offered by aerial photography for unravelling the physical complexities and historical development of the industrial landscape of Britain. A wide range of industrial sites is illustrated from quarries, mines and car factories to airports, railways and New Towns. The general nature and significance of their history and development is discussed while the detailed commentaries accompanying each photograph indicate the kind of historical and technical information which cannot be easily obtained in any other way. There is good geographic coverage of sites with examples from England, Wales and Scotland drawn from the eighteenth to the twentieth centuries. Through a combination of fascinating narrative detail and imaginative presentation of photographic evidence, this book provides a unique insight into our industrial past and present. Civil

The resulting dissertation has now been edited and presented in this booklet. It describes the 64 places visited with place names ending in 'ford' and discusses their relevance to the road system and the settlement pattern.
