Achievements and Developments in Combating Pesticide Resistance I. Denholm,A. Devonshire,D.

Hollomon,2012-12-06 The development of pesticide resistance in arthropod pests plant pathogens and weeds can be viewed and studied from two contrasting perspectives At a fundamental level resistance provides an almost ideal example of adaptation to withstand severe environmental stress Population geneticists biochemists and most recently molecular biologists have cast considerable light on the nature of this adaptation in diverse taxonomic groups and on factors determining its selection and spread within and between populations Unlike most evolutionary phenomena however resistance is also of immediate practical and economic significance Not only has the number of resistant species continued to increase inexorably but there has been an alarming increase in the severity and extent of some resistance problems Cases of organisms resisting virtually all available pesticides are by no means uncommon and pose a formidable challenge in view of present difficulties in discovering and developing novel chemicals Although most occurrences of resistance were initially monofactorial resistance now frequently involves a suite of coexisting mechanisms that protect organisms against the same or different pesticide groups and may even predispose them to resist new as yet unused chemicals Occupational and Residential Exposure Assessment for Pesticides

Claire A. Franklin,John P. Worgan,2005-04-08 This timely publication concentrates on the exposure to pesticides by agricultural workers and residential users of pesticides through inhalation and physical contact The book discusses more recently discovered risks such as pesticides on indoor carpets and includes new trends in data interpretation Occupational Residential Exposure Assessment for Pesticides complements the other title on pesticide exposure in the series Pesticide Residues in Drinking Water by Hamilton Crossley and is a must for all professionals in the Pesticide Industry as well as academics Metabolic Pathways of Agrochemicals
