Transforming Coastal Zone for Sustainable Food and Income Security T.D. Lama, Dhiman Burman, Uttam Kumar Mandal, Sukanta Kumar Sarangi, H.S. Sen, 2022-08-09. Coastal areas are commonly defined as the interface or transition areas between land and sea, including large inland lakes. Overall, about 50-70 % of the global population live within 100 km of the coastline, covering only about 4 % of Earth's land, thereby drawing heavily on coastal and marine habitats for food, building sites, transportation, recreational areas and waste disposal. The people of these zones depend mainly on low-productive agriculture due to several constraints such as prolonged water logging and drainage congestion in predominantly low-lying areas with heavy soils during the wet season; preponderance of saline and acid sulphate soils; scarcity of good quality irrigation water, particularly in the dry season; seawater intrusion into adjoining lands and water pollution due to eutrophication and others affecting the aquatic habitats, etc. Carbon sequestration in coastal areas such as marshes, lagoons, etc. has significant influence on soil quality and the carbon pool in soils as well as their impacts on the environment. Over and above these, the coastal areas are prone to disasters due to climate change, leading to colossal loss of lives and properties in many areas. Forestry and mangrove dynamics, in particular, because of their continuing diminishing nature, are also subjects of interest affecting the ecology of coastal zones, requiring appropriate attention. The international symposium held in this context on Transforming Coastal Zones for Sustainable Food and Income Security in virtual mode in March 2021 offered scope to present and discuss various thematic areas by eminent scientists from all over the world. The proceedings of selected papers presented reflect cross-sectoral views of the areas, highlighting wherever necessary, a fusion of technologies with the ultimate target to suggest livelihood security and sustainable development for the sensitive coastal zones. The book intends to share the knowledge with researchers, academicians and various other stakeholders to address the complex problems of coastal regions: production constraints, social, economic, technical and environmental issues, to draw out strategies for resilient agricultural technologies and improving livelihood security in coastal agro ecosystems Animal Science Reviews 2010 David Hemming, 2011 Animal Science Reviews 2010 provides scientists and students in animal science with timely analysis on key topics in current research Originally published online in CAB Reviews this volume makes available in printed form the reviews in animal science published during 2010 Why Livestock Genomics for Developing Countries offers Opportunities for Success Farai Catherine Muchadeyi, Eveline M.
