Promoting Racial Harmony

Michael Banton

Promoting Racial Harmony:

Promoting Racial Harmony Michael Banton, 1985 The years 1965-8 were the liberal hour for race relations policy in Britain. Laws were then enacted, enforcement agencies created and community relations councils established. These bodies and their personnel have been called the race relations industry. To many people the output of this industry appears disappointing relative to the input into it. This book examines a variety of optimistic assumptions about the speed with which immigrants adjust to a new environment, inadequate minority bargaining power, insufficiently speedy and decisive action by the central government, unwillingness on the part of the white majority to accept the desirability of such action and the difficulty of fitting a race relations policy into an administrative system created to serve an ethnically homogeneous population. The policies initiated in 1965 reflected the ascendancy of liberal over conservative assumptions about race relations. Now these are under sharp attack from a radical standpoint. Promoting Racial Harmony shows how the debate has changed, drawing upon recent economic theory to formulate the issues in an original but non-technical manner.

Promoting Racial Literacy in Schools Howard Stevenson, 2014-12-04 Based on extensive research, this provocative volume explores how schools are places where racial conflicts often remain hidden at the expense of a healthy school climate and the well-being of students of color. Most schools fail to act on racial microaggressions because the stress of negotiating such conflicts is extremely high due to fears of incompetence, public exposure and accusation. Instead of facing these conflicts head-on, schools perpetuate a set of avoidance or coping strategies. The author of this much-needed book uncovers how racial stress undermines student achievement. Students, educators and social service support staff will find workable strategies to improve their racial literacy skills to read, recast and resolve racially stressful encounters when they happen. Book Features: A model that applies culturally relevant behavioral stress management strategies to problem-solve racial stress in schools; Examples demonstrating workable solutions relevant within predominantly White schools for students, parents, teachers and administrators; Measurable outcomes and strategies for developing racial literacy skills that can be integrated into the K-12 curriculum and teacher professional development; Teaching and leadership skills that will create a more tolerant and supportive school environment for all students. Once more, Howard Stevenson has provided a blueprint of critical importance to policymakers, practitioners, teachers and parents. Margaret Beale Spencer, Marshall Field IV Professor of Urban Education and professor of Life Course Human Development, University of Chicago. Howard C. Stevenson is a clinical and consulting psychologist and professor of Education and Africana Studies and former chair of the Applied Psychology and Human Development Division in the Graduate School of Education at the University of Pennsylvania. The Colorless Society: A New Vision for Racial Harmony in America Pasquale De Marco, 2025-03-17 In a nation grappling with racial division and inequality, The Colorless Society: A New Vision for Racial Harmony in America emerges as a beacon of hope, offering a transformative vision for a society where race no longer defines individuals or dictates their life outcomes.
