Property Relations Renewing The Anthropological Tradition:

Property Relations C. M. Hann, 1998-04-16 The anthropological tradition approaches property as a bundle of rights and property relationships as social relationships Rejecting both liberal and socialist approaches which often neglect the wider social and cultural contexts of property the contributors to this volume renew and extend the anthropological perspective The ethnographic case studies include accounts of sharing and intelligence gathering among hunter gatherers and herders in Africa and in Siberia land appropriation from native Americans and the problems associated with the disposal of property in Melanesia However the anthropological perspective can also illuminate capitalist property relations and there are fascinating essays on property redistribution in Cyprus and Romania and on the history of property rights in England and Japan The Rights and Wrongs of Land Restitution Derick Fay, Deborah James, 2008-08-18 The Rights and Wrongs of Land Restitution Restoring What Was Ours offers a critical comparative ethnographic examination of land restitution programs Drawing on memories and histories of past dispossession governments NGOs informal movements and individual claimants worldwide have attempted to restore and reclaim rights in land Land restitution programs link the past and the present and may allow former landholders to reclaim lands which provided the basis of earlier identities and livelihoods Addressing the practical and theoretical questions that arise this book offers a critical rethinking of the links between land restitution and property social transition injustice citizenship the state and the market When Things Become Property Thomas Sikor, Stefan Dorondel, Johannes Stahl, Phuc Xuan To, 2017-04-01 Governments have conferred ownership titles to many citizens throughout the world in an effort to turn things into property Almost all elements of nature have become the target of property laws from the classic preoccupation with land to more ephemeral material such as air and genetic resources When Things Become Property interrogates the mixed outcomes of conferring ownership by examining postsocialist land and forest reforms in Albania Romania and Vietnam and finds that property reforms are no longer if they ever were miracle tools available to governments for refashioning economies politics or environments Organ Donation and the Divine Lien in Talmudic Law Madeline Kochen, 2014-08-21 This book offers a new theory of property and distributive justice derived from Talmudic law illustrated by a case study involving the sale of organs for transplant Although organ donation did not exist in late antiquity this book posits a new way drawn from the Talmud to conceive of this modern means of giving to others Our common understanding of organ transfers as either a gift or sale is trapped in a dichotomy that is conceptually and philosophically limiting Drawing on Maussian gift theory this book suggests a different legal and cultural meaning for this property transfer It introduces the concept of the divine lien an obligation to others in need built into the definition of all property ownership Rather than a gift or sale organ transfer is shown to exemplify an owner's voluntary recognition and fulfillment of this latent property obligation Routledge Handbook of Gender in South Asia Leela Fernandes, 2014-02-24 Providing a comprehensive overview of the study of gender in South Asia this Handbook covers the central contributions that have defined this area and captures innovative and emerging paradigms that are shaping the future of the field. It offers a wide range of disciplinary and interdisciplinary perspectives spanning both the humanities and social sciences focussing on India, Pakistan, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka. The Handbook brings together key experts in the field of South Asia and gender, women and sexuality. Chapters are organised thematically in five major sections: Historical formations of gender and the significance of colonialism and nationalism; Law, Citizenship and the Nation; Representations of Culture, Place, Identity, Labour and the Economy; Inequality, Activism and the State. This timely survey is essential reading for scholars who research and teach on South Asia as well as for scholars in related interdisciplinary fields that focus on women and gender from comparative and transnational perspectives.

Changing Properties of Property Franz von Benda-Beckmann, Keebet von Benda-Beckmann, Melanie Wiber, 2009. As an important contribution to debates on property theory and the role of law in creating, disputing, defining and refining property rights, this volume provides new theoretical material on property systems as well as new empirically grounded case studies of the dynamics of property transformations. The property claimants discussed in these papers represent a diverse range of actors including post-socialist states and their citizens, those receiving restitution for past property losses in Africa, Southeast Asia and in eastern Europe, collectives, corporate and individual actors. The volume thus provides a comprehensive anthropological analysis not only of property structures and ideologies but also of property and its politics in action.

The Return of Private Property Lale Yalçın-Heckmann, 2010. What makes private property valuable, desirable or workable? This book focuses on social and economic dimensions of private property after the agrarian reforms of 1996 in Azerbaijan. It looks at the kinds of land and cultivation strategies emerging in the decades after the fall of the Soviet Union and asks why rural households were often unwilling to cultivate the privatized land shares they received for free despite the threat and existence of rural poverty. Consideration is given both to households which were engaging in cultivation and those which were not. This includes internally displaced persons who were formally excluded from the privatization process but were nevertheless successful and eager cultivators. How and why were they keen on using land? How far does private property thrive on its own without the support of lucrative markets or without the implementation of state-sponsored economic policies? Through the lens and insights provided by economic anthropology, this study chronicles the historical legacy of authoritarian state structures as well as the contemporary micro and macro economic struggles that mark a politics of property after socialism.

Property Margaret Davies, 2007-11-19. This critique of property examines its classical conception, addressing its ontology and history as well as considering its symbolic aspects and connection to social relations of power. It is organized around three themes: the ways in which concepts of property are symbolically and practically connected to relations of power; the objects of property in changing contexts of materialism; challenges to the Western idea of property posed by colonial and post-colonial contexts such as the disempowerment through property of whole cultures; the justifications for colonial expansion and bio-piracy. Dealing with the symbolism of property, its history traditional philosophical accounts and cultural difference Margaret Davis has written an invaluable volume for all law students interested in property law

Economic Anthropology Chris Hann, Keith Hart, 2018-06-11 This book is a new introduction to the history and practice of economic anthropology by two leading authors in the field They show that anthropologists have contributed to understanding the three great questions of modern economic history development socialism and one world capitalism In doing so they connect economic anthropology to its roots in Western philosophy social theory and world history Up to the Second World War anthropologists tried and failed to interest economists in their exotic findings They then launched a vigorous debate over whether an approach taken from economics was appropriate to the study of non industrial economies Since the 1970s they have developed a critique of capitalism based on studying it at home as well as abroad The authors aim to rejuvenate economic anthropology as a humanistic project at a time when the global financial crisis has undermined confidence in free market economics They argue for the continued relevance of predecessors such as Marcel Mauss and Karl Polanyi while offering an incisive review of recent work in this field Economic Anthropology is an excellent introduction for social science students at all levels and it presents general readers with a challenging perspective on the world economy today Selected by Choice as a 2013 Outstanding Academic Title

Kastom, property and ideology Siobhan McDonnell, Matthew Allen, Colin Filer, 2017-03-22 The relationship between customary land tenure and modern forms of landed property has been a major political issue in the Spearhead states of Melanesia since the late colonial period and is even more pressing today as the region is subject to its own version of what is described in the international literature as a new land rush or land grab in developing countries This volume aims to test the application of one particular theoretical framework to the Melanesian version of this phenomenon which is the framework put forward by Derek Hall Philip Hirsch and Tania Murray Li in their 2011 book Powers of Exclusion Land Dilemmas in Southeast Asia Since that framework emerged from studies of the agrarian transition in Southeast Asia the key question addressed in this volume is whether land transformations in Melanesia are proceeding in a similar direction or whether they take a somewhat different form because of the particular nature of Melanesian political economies or social institutions The contributors to this volume all deal with this question from the point of view of their own direct engagement with different aspects of the land policy process in particular countries Aside from discussion of the agrarian transition in Melanesia particular attention is also paid to the growing problem of land access in urban areas and the gendered nature of landed property relations in this region

Land and Language in Cape York Peninsula and the Gulf Country Jean-Christophe Verstraete, Diane Hafner, 2016-02-18 This volume offers a state of the art survey of linguistic anthropological archaeological and historical work focused on Cape York Peninsula and the Gulf Country in Australia's northeast The volume also honours Bruce Rigsby emeritus professor of anthropology at the University of Queensland whose work has inspired all of the contributors The papers in the volume are organized in terms of five key themes including the use of historical and archaeological methods to reconstruct aspects of language and social organization anthropological and linguistic work uncovering aspects of world view embedded in languages and ethnographic data sets the study of post contact transformations in language and society and the return of archival data to communities Its thematic intersections draw together the varied disciplinary threads in an overview of the cultures and languages of the region and will appeal to all those interested in Australian Aboriginal studies linguistics anthropology and associated disciplines

Institutions in Transition Peter Ho, 2005-07-21 China's urban sprawl has led to serious social cleavages Unclear land and property rights have resulted in an uneasy alliance between real estate companies and local authorities with most willing to strike illegal deals over land The results have been devastating Farmers live in fear that the land they till today will be gone tomorrow while urban citizens are regularly evicted from their homes to make way for new skyscrapers and highways These shocking incidents underscore the urgency of the land question in China The recent conviction of the Chinese Minister for Land Resources and the forced evictions that have led to the injury and death of ordinary Chinese citizens highlight the case for land reform Against this backdrop many scholars criticize China's lack of privatization and titling of property This monograph however demonstrates that these critically depend on timing and place Land titling is imperative for the wealthier regions yet may prove detrimental in areas with high poverty The book argues that China's land reform can only succeed if the clarification of property rights is done with caution and ample regard for regional variations

Rural Governance Lynda Cheshire, Vaughan Higgins, Geoffrey Lawrence, 2006-12-05 This book critically explores the social causes and consequences of emerging governance arrangements In particular the book moves beyond questions of empowerment in governance debates to consider how new kinds of power relations arise between the various actors involved

Subverting Communism in Romania Mihaela Serban, 2019-08-22 Subverting Communism in Romania explores the role of law in everyday life and as a mechanism for social change during early communism in Romania Mihaela Serban focuses on the regime's attempts to extinguish private property in housing through housing nationalization and expropriation This study of early communist law illustrates that law is never just an instrument of state power particularly over the long term and from a ground up perspective Even during its most totalitarian phase communist law enjoyed a certain level of autonomy at the most granular level and consequently was simultaneously a space of state power and resistance to power The book draws from archives recently made available in Romania which have opened up new perspectives for understanding a mundane yet crucial part of the modern human experience one's home and the institution of private property that often sustains it

Visions of Justice Paolo Sartori, 2016-11-21 Visions of Justice offers an exploration of legal consciousness among the Muslim communities of Central Asia from the end of the eighteenth century through the fall of the Russian Empire Paolo Sartori surveys how colonialism affected the way in which Muslims formulated their convictions about entitlements and became exposed to different notions of morality Situating his work within a range of debates about colonialism and law legal pluralism and subaltern subjectivity Sartori puts the study of Central Asia on a broad conceptually sophisticated comparative footing Drawing from a wealth of Arabic Persian Turkic and Russian sources this book provides a thoughtful critique of method and considers some of the contrasting ways in which material from Central Asian archives may most usefully be read Publication in Open Access was made possible by a grant from the Volkswagen Foundation

Property and Equality Thomas Widlok,Wolde Gossa Tadesse,2006-01-01 The ethnography of egalitarian social systems was first met with sheer disbelief Today it is still hotly debated in a number of fields and has gained sophistication as well as momentum This collection of essays on property and equality acknowledges this diversification by presenting research results in two complementary volumes They bring together a wide range of authoritative researchers most of whom have worked with hunter gatherer groups These two volumes cover existing ethnographic and theoretical ground while maintaining a clear focus on the relation between property and equality The book consists of the most recent work of prominent members of the original group of researchers in hunter gatherer studies among them James Woodburn and Richard Lee and very recent ethnography on hunter gatherers and other egalitarian systems

Negotiating Rural Land Ownership in Southwest China Yi Wu,2016-08-31 Negotiating Rural Land Ownership in Southwest China offers the first comprehensive analysis of how China s current system of land ownership has evolved over the past six decades Based on extended fieldwork in Yunnan Province the author explores how the three major rural actors local governments village communities and rural households have contested and negotiated land rights at the grassroots level thereby transforming the structure of rural land ownership in the People s Republic of China At least two million rural settlements or natural villages are estimated to exist in China today Formed spontaneously out of settlement choices over extended periods of time these rural settlements are fundamentally different from the present day administrative villages imposed by the government from above Yi Wu s historical ethnography sheds light on such natural villages and their role in shaping the current land ownership system Drawing on local land disputes archival documents and rich local histories the author unveils their enduring social identities in both the Maoist and reform eras She pioneers the concept of bounded collectivism to describe what resulted from struggles between the Chinese state trying to establish collective land ownership and rural settlements seeking exclusive control over land resources within their traditional borders A particular contribution of this book is that it provides a nuanced understanding of how and why China's rural land ownership is changing in post Mao China Yi Wu uses village level data to show how local governments rural communities and rural households compete for use income and transfer rights in both agricultural production and the land market She demonstrates that the current rural land ownership system in China is not a static system imposed by the state from above but a constantly changing hybrid Modern

Studies in Property Law - Volume 7 Nicholas Hopkins, 2014-07-18 This book contains a collection of peer reviewed papers presented at the ninth biennial Modern Studies in Property Law conference held at the University of Southampton in March 2012 It is the 7th volume to be published under the name of the conference The conference and its published proceedings have become an established forum for property lawyers from around the world to showcase current research in the discipline This collection reflects both the breadth of modern research in property law and its international dimensions Incorporating a keynote address by Lord Walker of Gestingthorpe retired Justice of the Supreme Court on The Saga of Strasbourg and Social Housing a number of chapters reveal the burgeoning influence of human rights in property law Other contributions illustrate an enduring need to question and explore fundamental concepts of the subject alongside new and emerging areas of study Collectively the chapters demonstrate the importance and relevance of property research in addressing a wide range of contemporary issues
