David Cummins, Scott E. Harrington, 2013-03-09 Property liability insurance rates for most lines of business are regulated in about one half of the states In most cases this means that rates must be filed with the state insurance commissioner and approved prior to use The remainder of the states have various forms of competitive rating laws These either require that rates be filed prior to use but need not be approved or that rates need not be filed at all State rating laws are summarized in Rand Corporation 1985 The predominant form of insurance rate regulation prior approval began in the late 1940s following the V S Supreme Court decision in United States vs South Eastern Underwriters Association 322 V S 533 1944 This was an anti trust case involving one of four regional associations of insurance companies which constituted an insurance cartel The case struck down an earlier decision Paul vs Virginia 8 Wall 168 1869 holding that the business of insurance was not interstate commerce and hence that state regulation of insurance did not violate the commerce clause of the U S Constitution Following South Eastern Underwriters the United States Congress passed the McCarran Ferguson Act which held that continued state regulation and taxation of insurance was in the public interest The act also held that the federal antitrust laws would not apply to insurance to the extent that the business was adequately regulated by state law See U S Department of Justice 1977

Accounting Insurance Accounting and Statistical Association,1974 Deregulating Property-Liability Insurance J. David Cummins,2004-06-23 Over the past two decades the United States has successfully deregulated prices and restrictions on most previously regulated industries including airlines trucking railroads telecommunications and banking Only a few industries remain regulated the largest being the property liability insurance business In light of recent sweeping financial modernization legislation in other sectors of the insurance industry this timely volume examines the basis for continued regulation of rates and forms of the U S property liability insurance market The book focuses on private passenger automobile insurance the most important personal line of property liability coverage with annual premiums of about 120 billion The authors analyze five state case studies California Massachusetts and New Jersey three of the most heavily regulated states as well as Illinois which has been deregulated for about 30 years and South Carolina which began to deregulate in 1997 The study also includes an econometric analysis based on all fifty states over a 25 year period that gauges the impact of regulation on insurance price levels price volatility and the proportion of automobiles insured in residual markets The authors conclude that regulation does not significantly reduce long run prices for consumers and generally limits availability of coverage reduces the quality and variety of services available in the market inhibits productivity growth and increases price volatility Contributors include Dwight Jaffee University of California Berkeley Thomas Russell Santa Clara University Laureen Regan Temple University Sharon Tennyson Cornell University Mary Weiss Temple University John Worrall Rutgers University Stephen D Arcy University of Illinois Urbana Champaign Martin Grace Georgia State University Robert Klein Georgia State University Richard Phillips Georgia State University Georges Dionne University of Montreal and Richard Butler Brigham Young University
