Road To Production The:

The Impact of the IIRSA Road Infrastructure Programme on Amazonia Pitou van Dijck, 2013-03-05 This book analyses the potential socio economic and environmental impacts of the Initiative for Regional Infrastructure Integration in South America IIRSA a continent wide programme IIRSA aims at facilitating intra regional trade and at improving trade and transport links with world markets This is the first book on IIRSA and its potential implications for South America and more specifically for Amazonia The book provides an in depth analysis of the infrastructure programme and deals particularly with methods to assess the probable effects of road construction in environmentally fragile territories To deepen our understanding of the potential impacts of roads in these areas the book combines insights from economic and environmental sciences and gives a critical review of traditional assessments and strategic environmental assessments SEAs A comprehensive approach of assessing impacts is presented in three case studies of SEAs the Corredor Norte in Bolivia the road between Manaus and Porto Velho in Brazil and the proposed road to link Suriname with Brazil Federal Aids for War Mineral Production United States. War Production Board, 1942 Rural Roads Evaluation Summary Report Grant William Anderson, Charles G. Vandervoort, 1982 Public Roads, 1918 Army RD & A., 1982 Cities, value chains, and dairy production in Ethiopia Vandecasteele, Joachim, Minten, Bart, Tamru, Seneshaw, 2019-10-11 This paper explores the spatial heterogeneity in dairy production in the highland production area around the capital of Ethiopia Addis Ababa We look at how urban proximity defined as the travel time from the farm to the central market of Addis Ababa affects the production decisions of Ethiopian dairy farmers We sampled 870 households from the major rural production zones around Addis Ababa where villages were stratified according to their distance to Addis Ababa Using an instrumental variable approach we find evidence of strong spatial heterogeneity in dairy milk productivity in Ethiopia With each additional hour of travel time the milk productivity per cow is reduced by almost 1 liter per day a reduction by 26 percent on average This spatial heterogeneity in milk productivity reflects a pronounced spatial variation in dairy production decisions producing liquid milk or processed dairy products the application of modern inputs and marketing When trying to disentangle the mechanisms through which urban proximity affects dairy productivity we show that the effect of travel time mainly runs through farmers inclusion into modern value chains and more specifically through their access to commercial milk buyers This finding holds when we control for prices indicating that access to commercial value chains are an important determinant of dairy productivity However as only a limited number of farmers now have access to such value chains in these settings measures to make dairy value chains more inclusive to remote farmers can have important economic development benefits for them Effect of Logging Roads on Sediment Production Rates in the Idaho Batholith Walter F.
