Rethinking School Choice Jeffrey R. Henig, 1995-07-24 Advocates of school vouchers and other choice proposals couch their arguments in the fashionable language of economic theory Choice initiatives at all levels of government have succeeded it is claimed because they shift responsibility for education reform from government to market forces This timely book disputes the appropriateness of the market metaphor as a guide to education policy Regional Strategy Meetings on Choice in Education ,1989 School Choice David Harmer, 1994 What school choice will mean and how we get it The Economics of School Choice Caroline M. Hoxby, 2007-11-01 Now that the U S Supreme Court has declared school voucher programs constitutional the many unanswered questions concerning the potential effects of school choice will become especially pressing Contributors to this volume draw on state of the art economic methods to answer some of these questions investigating the ways in which school choice affects a wide range of issues Combining the results of empirical research with analyses of the basic economic forces underlying local education markets The Economics of School Choice presents evidence concerning the impact of school choice on student achievement school productivity teachers and special education It also tackles difficult questions such as whether school choice affects where people decide to live and how choice can be integrated into a system of school financing that gives children from different backgrounds equal access to resources Contributors discuss the latest findings on Florida s school choice program as well as voucher programs and charter schools in several other states The resulting volume not only reveals the promise of school choice but examines its pitfalls as well showing how programs can be designed that exploit the idea s potential but avoid its worst effects With school choice programs gradually becoming both more possible and more popular this book stands out as an essential exploration of the effects such programs will have and a necessary resource for anyone interested in the idea of school choice Learning from School Choice Paul E. We Belong Here Shani Adia Evans, 2025-01-16 A landmark study that shows how Black residents experience and respond to the rapid transformation of historically Black places Although Portland Oregon is sometimes called America s whitest city Black residents who grew up in the neighborhoods of northeast Portland have made it their own The district of

Albina also called Northeast was their haven and a hub of Black community life But between 1990 and 2010 Albina changed dramatically it became majority white In We Belong Here sociologist Shani Adia Evans offers an intimate look at gentrification from the inside documenting the reactions of the residents of Albina as the racial demographics of their neighborhood shift As white culture becomes centered in Northeast Black residents recount their experiences with what Evans refers to as white watching the questioning look on the faces of white people they encounter which conveys an exclusionary message What are you doing here This Evans shows is a prime example of what she calls white spacemaking the establishment of white space spaces in which whiteness is assumed to be the norm in formerly non white neighborhoods While gentrification typically describes socioeconomic changes that may have racial implications white spacemaking allows us to understand racism as a primary mechanism of neighborhood change We Belong Here illuminates why gentrification and white spacemaking should be examined as intersecting but not interchangeable processes of neighborhood change

The Charter School Experience Michael Bitz, 2016-10-26 The Charter School Experience Voices from the Field is a unique book that presents readers with balanced perspectives from teachers students parents and school leaders at charter schools across the United States Through first person narratives the book highlights the delicate intricacies of what makes a school charter succeed or fail Unlike a book written by academics far removed from the practice of education this book gives voice to the people most impacted by charters the families and educators who have embraced these schools for better or worse and who now have enriching stories to tell These experiences embodied in introspective and moving chapters go well beyond the news headlines and politicized studies that have spotlighted charters in the past In this book teachers highlight their successes and failures in charter school classrooms parents explore decisions to enroll in charters school leaders discuss the social missions of charters and students write about how charter schools have impacted their lives The result is an engaging collection of ideas for a wide audience including people researching attending and making policy on charter schools in the United States and around the world
