Sentimental Education The Story Of A Young Man:

Sentimental Education Gustave Flaubert, 2016-03-03 For certain men the stronger their desire the less likely they are to act With his first glimpse of Madame Arnoux Fr d ric Moreau is convinced he has found his romantic destiny but when he pursues her to Paris the young student is unable to translate his passion into decisive action He also finds himself distracted by the equally romantic appeal of political action in the turbulent years leading up to the revolution of 1848 and by the attractions of three other women each of whom seeks to make him her own a haughty society lady a capricious courtesan and an artless country girl Flaubert offers a vivid and unsparing portrait of the young men of his generation struggling to salvage something of their ideals in a city where corruption consumerism and a pervasive sense of disenchantment undermine all but the most compromised erotic aesthetic and social initiatives Sentimental Education combines thoroughgoing irony with an impartial but unexpectedly intense sympathy in a novel whose realism competes with that of Balzac and whose innovations in narrative plot and perspective mark a turning point in the development of literary modernism ABOUT THE SERIES For over 100 years Oxford World s Classics has made available the widest range of literature from around the globe Each affordable volume reflects Oxford s commitment to scholarship providing the most accurate text plus a wealth of other valuable features including expert introductions by leading authorities helpful notes to clarify the text up to date bibliographies for further study and much more

Sentimental Education Gustave Flaubert, 2024-01-02 A fresh and vivid translation of Flaubert s influential bildungsroman Gustave Flaubert conceived Sentimental Education his final complete novel as the history of his own generation one that failed to fulfill the promise of the Revolution of 1848 Published a few months before the start of the 1870 Franco Prussian War it offers both a sweeping panorama of French society over three decades and an intimate bildungsroman of a young man from a small town who arrives in Paris when protests against the monarchy are increasing The novel s protagonist Fr d ric Moreau alternates between aimlessness and ambition as he searches for a meaningful life through love affairs and republican politics Flaubert s narrative includes scenes of high drama as scattered protests across Paris swell into revolution and quiet moments of self aware romanticism crafting a story that possesses the sweep and scope of a historical novel combined with deep emotion and scandalous intimacy Suffused with tragedy and the poignancy of lost chances and wasted lives Sentimental Education is sharpened by satirical observations of what Flaubert condemned as the Second Empire s endemic hypocrisy and willful blindness This vibrant new translation by Raymond N MacKenzie includes an extensive critical introduction and annotations to help the modern reader appreciate Flaubert s achievement Sentimental Education intertwines the personal the intimate and the subjective with the political social and cultural embedding Fr d ric s story in the larger arc of what Flaubert saw as France s decline into mediocrity and imbecility in its politics and manners

People rushed on board the vessel in frantic haste. The traffic was obstructed by casks, cables, and baskets of linen. The sailors answered no questions. People jostled one another. Between the two paddle boxes was a heap of parcels; the clamour was drowned in the loud hissing of the steam which, making its way through the plates of sheet iron, encompassed every thing in a white mist, while the bell at the prow kept continuously ringing. At last the vessel drew away, and the banks of the river, crowded with warehouses, timber yards, and manufactories, opened out like two huge ribbons being unrolled. People came rushing on board in breathless

haste The traffic was obstructed by casks cables and baskets of linen The sailors answered nobody People jostled one another Between the two paddle boxes was piled up a heap of parcels and the uproar was drowned in the loud hissing of the steam which making its way through the plates of sheet iron enveloped everything in a white cloud while the bell at the prow kept ringing continuously At last the vessel set out and the two banks of the river stocked with warehouses timber yards and manufactories opened out like two huge ribbons being unrolled A young man of eighteen with long hair holding an album under his arm remained near the helm without moving Through the haze he surveyed steeples buildings of which he did not know the names then with a parting glance he took in the le St Louis the Cit N tre Dame and presently as Paris disappeared from his view he heaved a deep sigh Frederick Moreau having just taken his Bachelor s degree was returning home to Nogent sur Seine where he would have to lead a languishing existence for two months before going back to begin his legal studies His mother had sent him with enough to cover his expenses to Havre to see an uncle from whom she had expectations of his receiving an inheritance He had returned from that place only yesterday and he indemnified himself for not having the opportunity of spending a little time in the capital by taking the longest possible route to reach his own part of the country The hubbub had subsided The passengers had all taken their places Some of them stood warming themselves around the machinery and the chimney spat forth with a slow rhythmic rattle its plume of black smoke Little drops of dew trickled over the copper plates the deck quivered with the vibration from within and the two paddle wheels rapidly turning round lashed the water The edges of the river were covered with sand The vessel swept past rafts of wood which began to oscillate under the rippling of the waves or a boat without sails in which a man sat fishing Then the wandering haze cleared off the sun appeared the hill which ran along the course of the Seine to the right subsided by degrees and another rose nearer on the opposite bank It was crowned with trees which surrounded low built houses covered with roofs in the Italian style They had sloping gardens divided by fresh walls iron railings grass plots hot houses and vases of geraniums laid out regularly on the terraces where one could lean forward on one s elbow More than one spectator longed on beholding those attractive residences which looked so peaceful to be the owner of one of them and to dwell there till the end of his days with a good billiard table a sailing boat and a woman or some other object to dream about The agreeable novelty of a journey by water made such outbursts natural Already the wags on board were beginning their jokes Many began to sing Gaiety prevailed and glasses of brandy were poured out Frederick was thinking about the apartment which he would occupy over there on the plan of a drama on subjects for pictures on future passions He found that the happiness merited by the excellence of his soul was slow in arriving He declaimed some melancholy verses He walked with rapid step along the deck
