Dwivedy, Suprabhat Ray, 2013-03-13 Volume 45 of Progress in Drug Research contains eight reviews and the various indexes which facilitate its use and establish the connection with the previous volumes The articles in this volume deal with neuro peptides as native immune modulators with Calmodulin and with effects of cell stimuli and drugs on cellular activation with recent advances in benzodiazepine receptor binding studies with the medicinal chemistry and therapeutic potentials of ligands of the histamine H3 receptor with Serotonin uptake inhibitors with computer aided drug design with natri uretic hormones and with the recent developments in the chemotherapy of osteoporosis In the 36 years that PDR has existed the Editor has enjoyed the valuable help and advice of many colleagues Readers the authors of the reviews and last but not least the reviewers have all contributed greatly to the success of this series Although the comments received so far have generally been favorable it is nevertheless necessary to analyze and to reassess the current position and the future direction of such a series of monographs So far it has been the Editor's intention to help disseminate information on the vast domain of drug research and to provide the reader with a tool with which to keep abreast of the latest developments and trends The reviews in PDR are useful to the nonspecialist who can obtain an overview of a particular field of drug research in a relatively short time Progress in Drug Research / Fortschritte der Arzneimittelforschung / Progrès des recherches pharmaceutiques

JUCKER, 2013-03-08 Today's drug research is an extremely complex process which apart from chemistry pharmacology toxicology and preclinical trials includes a variety of sciences such as biotechnology biochemistry immunology physics biology and even computer sciences The Table of Contents of the present volume demonstrates this situation and makes it evident that the individual researcher cannot possibly hope to keep abreast of all aspects of modern drug research In this respect the series of monographs Progress in Drug Research provides valuable help and assistance Those who simply wish to remain informed of the latest trends and developments in drug research can use the 34 volumes so far available as a source of almost encyclopedic character Researchers actively engaged in the various scientific fields forming the entity of drug research can benefit from the wealth of knowledge and experience of the respective authors and they will be assisted in their endeavour to discover new pharmaceutical agents Moreover the extensive bibliographies of the individual reviews provide an invaluable overview of the literature most pertinent to today's drug research I should like to thank all the authors for their willingness to prepare the reviews and for sharing their insights and experience with the readers Thanks are also due to Mrs L Koechlin H P Thiir and A Gomm of Birkhauser Publishers for their valuable help in the preparation of this volume
