Capital City Samuel Stein, 2019-03-05 Our cities are changing Global real estate is now a 217 trillion dollar industry 36 times the value of all the gold ever mined It makes up 60 percent of the world's assets and the most powerful person in the world the president of the United States made his name as a landlord and real estate developer As Samuel Stein makes clear in this tightly argued book its through seemingly innocuous profession of city planners that we can best understand the transformations underway Planners provide a window into the practical dynamics of urban change the way the state uses and is used by organized capital and the power of landlords and developers at every level of government But crucially planners also possess some of the powers we must leverage if we ever wish to reclaim our cities from real estate capital

Aspen and the American Dream Jenny Stuber, 2021-03-23 How is it possible for a town to exist where the median household income is about 73 000 but the median home price is about 4 000 000 Boring into the impossible math of Aspen Colorado Stuber explores how middle class people have found a way to live in this supergentrified town Interviewing a range of residents policymakers and officials Stuber shows that what resolves the math equation between incomes and home values in Aspen Colorado the X factor that makes middle class life possible is the careful orchestration of diverse class interests within local politics and the community She explores how this is achieved through a highly regulatory and extractive land use code that provides symbolic and material value to highly affluent investors and part year residents as well as less affluent locals many of whom benefit from an array of subsidies including an extensive affordable housing program that redistribute economic resources in ways that make it possible for middle class residents to live there Stuber further examines how Latinos who provide much of the service work in Aspen and who tend to live outside the town fit into the social geography of one of the most unequal places in the country Overall Stuber argues that the Aspen's ability to balance the interests of its diverse class constituencies is not a foregone conclusion rather it is the result of efforts by local stakeholders citizens government developers and vacationers to preserve the town's unique feel and value and keep Aspen Aspen in all its complex dynamics

The Imaginative Institution: Planning and Governance in Madrid Michael Neuman, 2016-03-03 Every 20 years since 1920 Madrid has undergone an urban planning cycle in which a city plan was prepared adopted by law and implemented by a new institution This preparation adoption institutionalization sequence along with the institution s structures and procedures have persisted with some exceptions despite frequent upheavals in society The planning institution itself played a lead role in maintaining continuity traumatic history notwithstanding Why and how was this the case Madrid s planners who had mostly trained as architects invented new images for the city and metro region images of urban space that were social constructs the products of planning processes These images were tools that coordinated planning and urban policy In a complex fragmented institutional milieu in which scores of organized interests competed in overlapping policy arenas images were a cohesive force around which plans policies and investments were shaped Planners in Madrid also used their images to build new institutions Images began as city or metropolitan designs or as a metaphor capturing a new vision New political regimes injected their principles and beliefs into the governing institution via images and metaphors These images went a long way in constituting the new institution and in helping realize each regime s goals This empirically based life cycle theory of institutional evolution suggests that the constitutional image sustaining the institution undergoes a change or is replaced by a new image leading to a new or reformed institution A life cycle typology of institutional transformation is formulated with four variables type of change stimulus for change type of constitutional image and outcome of the transformation By linking the life cycle hypothesis with cognitive theories of image formation and then situating their synthesis within a frame of cognition as a means of structuring the institution this book arrives at a new theory

of the consumer society's most influential theorists Jean Baudrillard and Zygmunt Bauman this book assesses the ways in which consumerism is reshaping the nature and meaning of the city Environmental City William Scott Jr. Swearingen, Jr., 2010-03-01 As Austin grew from a college and government town of the 1950s into the sprawling city of 2010 two ideas of Austin as a place came into conflict Many who promoted the ideology of growth believed Austin would be defined by economic output money and wealth But many others thought Austin was instead defined by its quality of life Because the natural environment contributed so much to Austin's quality of life a social movement that wanted to preserve the city's environment became the leading edge of a larger movement that wanted to retain a unique sense of place The environmental movement in Austin became the political and symbolic arm of the more general movement for place This is a history of the environmental movement in Austin how it began what it did and how it promoted ideas about the relationships between people cities and the environment It is also about a deeper movement to retain a sense of place that is Austin and how that deeper movement continues to shape the way Austin is built today The city it helped to create is now on the forefront of national efforts to rethink how we build our cities reduce global warming and find ways that humans and the environment can coexist in a big city

Uneven Innovation Jennifer Clark, 2020-02-25 The city of the future we are told is the smart city By seamlessly integrating information and communication technologies into the provision and management of public services such cities will enhance opportunity and bolster civic engagement Smarter cities will bring in new revenue while saving money They will be more of everything that a twenty first century urban planner citizen and elected official wants more efficient more sustainable and more inclusive Is this true In Uneven Innovation Jennifer Clark considers the potential of these emerging technologies as well as their capacity to exacerbate existing inequalities and even produce new ones She reframes the smart city concept within the trajectory of uneven development of cities and regions as well as the long history of technocratic solutions to urban policy challenges Clark argues that urban change driven by the technology sector is following the patterns that have previously led to imbalanced access opportunities and outcomes The tech sector needs the city yet it exploits and maintains unequal arrangements embedding labor flexibility and precarity in the built environment Technology development Uneven Innovation contends is the easy part understanding the city and its governance regulation access participation and representation all of which are complex and highly localized is the real challenge Clark s critique leads to policy prescriptions that present a path toward an alternative future in which smart cities result in more equitable communities
