hearing and smell the reader will discover that there is really nothing more to our reality than what our senses present to us Does reality perhaps come from within Is something more divine hiding in all of us after all Friday's Footprint Leslie Brothers, 2001-10-11 A psychiatrist who has received international recognition for her research on the neural basis of primate social cognition Leslie Brothers M D offers here a major argument about the social dimension of the human brain drawing on both her own work and a wealth of information from research laboratories neurosurgical clinics and psychiatric wards Brothers offers the tale of Robinson Crusoe as a metaphor for neuroscience s classic and flawed notion of the brain a starkly isolated figure working praying writing alone But the famous castaway of literature she notes came from society and returned to society So too with our brains they have evolved a specialized capacity for exchanging signals with other brains they are designed to be social This can be seen in the brain's sensitive attunement to the meanings of facial expressions and physical gestures and the way it assigns mental lives to physical bodies a feat we too often take for granted Brothers describes fascinating case studies that show that certain kinds of brain damage can destroy a patient s ability to interpret faces leaving him or her with the sense that they are surrounded by zombies She takes us down to the level of the individual neuron exploring the response of brain cells to social events Perhaps most important she connects neuroscience psychiatry and sociology as never before showing how our daily interaction creates an organized social world a network of brains that generates meaningful behavior and thought Our emotions and our sense of self have no existence outside of a social context Brothers conducts her argument with grace and style By broadening our approach to the brain this groundbreaking book makes an important contribution to our understanding of the human mind Catalogue of Title-entries of Books and Other Articles Entered in the Office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, Under the Copyright Law ... The Burning Question Mike Berners-Lee, Duncan Clark, 2013-04-15 The Burning Question reveals climate change to be the most fascinating scientific political and social puzzle in history It shows that carbon emissions are still accelerating upwards following an exponential curve that goes back centuries One reason is that saving energy is like squeezing a balloon reductions in one place lead to increases elsewhere Another reason is that clean energy sources dont in themselves slow the rate of fossil fuel extraction Tackling global warming will mean persuading the world to abandon oil coal and gas reserves worth many trillions of dollars at least until we have the means to put carbon back in the ground The burning question is whether that can be done What mix of politics psychology economics and technology might be required Are the energy companies massively overvalued and how will carbon cuts affect the global economy Will we wake up to the threat in time And who can do what to make it all happen The Life of Raphael Herman Friedrich Grimm, 1889 Sacred Cosmogony; or, Primitive Revelation demonstrated by the harmony of the facts of the Mosaic history of the Creation with the principles of general science.
