Harris, 2002-01-01 This book reflects each contributor s vision of the future visions that range from the enthusiastic and hopeful to the pessimistic and fearful The Internet, Organizational Change and Labor David C. D. Jacobs, Joel Yudken, 2003-07-31 Examining what is happening to work organizations and unions in the age of the Internet this fascinating book reveals both the opportunities and dangers for workers in the digital age International and Development Communication Bella Mody, 2003-04-29 Mody ties together much of the book with the currently compelling concept of globalization For scholars it provides a wealth of current references and sketches a historical overview that is mostly absent in other volumes that attempt a summary like this one COMMUNICATION RESEARCH TRENDS International and Development Communication A 21st Century Perspective examines the exciting field of international and development communication and illustrates how this field of study is composed and how it has grown Derived from the successful Handbook of International and Intercultural Communication Second Edition this book opens with an updated and expanded introduction by Bella Mody showcasing the effects of globalization and contains those chapters from the Handbook that deal with international and development communication International and Development Communication provides a historical perspective and a contemporary analysis of the field of international communication and its application to development communication The book examines how communication media and telecommunications are considered central to globalization and to national development and discusses globalization in history the role of media changes in structural biases of media and telecommunication institutions national forces of capitalism and biases in international and development communication messages provides a historical perspective and a contemporary analysis of the field of international communication and its application to development communication. The book examines how communication media and telecommunications are considered central to globalization and to national development and discusses globalization in history, the role of media, changes in structural biases of media and telecommunication institutions, national forces of capitalism and biases in international and development communication messages. The book is divided into two parts: Part One revolves around media institutions and the conditions under which they have been used by the state and private capital; Part Two focuses on development communication applications by various active researchers and professors drawn from Latin America, South Asia and North America. With contributions from experts in the field, each part of the book begins with a chapter on theories and closes with one on issues. Chapters within each part examine the distinct and broadly recognized topics of research within each area, such as media corporations in the age of globalization, transnational advertising, the global local dialectic and polysemic effects, development communication campaigns, communication technology and development, and international development communication.

Communitarian International Relations Emanuel Adler, 2004-11-10. In Emanuel Adler's distinctive constructivist approach to international relations theory, international practices evolve in tandem with collective knowledge of the material and social worlds. This book, comprising a fresh selection of his journal publications, a substantial new introduction, three previously unpublished articles, points IR constructivism in a novel direction characterized as communitarian. Adler's synthesis does not herald the end of the nation state nor does it suggest that agency is unimportant in international life. Rather, it argues that what mediates between individual and state agency and social structures are communities of practice, which are the wellspring and repositories of collective meanings and social practices. The concept of communities of practice casts new light on epistemic communities and security communities, helping to explain why certain ideas congeal into human practices and others do not, and which social mechanisms can facilitate the emergence of normatively better communities.

The Chemical Industry at the Millennium Peter H. Spitz, 2003. Examines how the chemical industry has been transformed over the past 20 years.

Rape Loot Pillage Sara Meger, 2016-07-01. Rape and other forms of sexual violence have always been a feature of war. Yet it is only fairly recently that researchers have identified rape as a deliberate tool of war making, rather than simply an inevitable side effect of armed conflict. Much of the emerging literature has suggested that the underlying causes of rape stem from a single motivation, whether individual, symbolic or strategic, leading to disagreement in the field about how we can understand and respond to the causes and consequences of sexual violence in war. In Rape Loot Pillage, Sara Meger argues that sexual violence is a form of gender-based political violence perpetrated against both men and women and a manifestation of unequal gender relations that are exacerbated by the social, political and economic conditions of war. She looks at trends in the form and function of sexual violence in recent and ongoing conflicts to contend that in different contexts sexual violence takes different forms and is used in pursuit of different objectives For this reason no single framework for addressing conflict related sexual violence will be sufficient Taking a political economy perspective Meger maintains that these variations can be explained by broader struggles over territory assets and other productive resources that motivate contemporary armed conflicts Sexual violence is a reflection of global political economic struggles and can t be addressed only at the local level it must be addressed through regional and international policy She concludes by providing some initial ideas about how this can be done via the UN and national governments

Children and Computer Technology ,2000 Transnational Southeast Asia Hannah Ming Yit Ho,Ying-kit Chan,2025-04-19 This open access book presents Southeast Asia as an interesting and conceptually meaningful site to interrogate the transnational paradigm In featuring research from and across different nations in Southeast Asia it asks in what ways Southeast Asia lends itself to nuanced applications of transnationalism and what the wider cultural and collective implications of that might be Instead of viewing the past and the present as oppositional concepts of time a temporal continuum is applied to a time space compression that is fundamental to the workings of the transnational paradigm in the region that we call Southeast Asia The transnational paradigm a conceptual tool encompassing various configurations of transnationalism across disciplines becomes relevant for analysing global cultural flows but not without due consideration of the nuances shaped by spatio temporal trends A paradigm shift in transnationalism from historical connections to contemporary connectivity is afforded by increased mobility and accelerated cultural flows which have given rise to unprecedented economic productivity in the past century and digital connectivity in the new millennium a shift that the chapters collectively explore Relevant to advanced students and scholars across disciplines in the humanities and social sciences focused on Southeast Asia this book is a timely exploration that unpicks and unpacks this long discussed aspect within Asian area studies

Migrant Men Mike Donaldson,Raymond Hibbins,Richard Howson,Bob Pease,2009-09-11 This edited volume contributes an important collection of chapters to the growing theoretical and empirical work being undertaken at the international level on men and migration The chapters presented here focus on what we might call migratory masculinities the experiences men have of masculinity upon immigration into another national ethnic and cultural context How do these men re construct their conceptions of masculinity Where are the points of tension ambivalence or assimilation in this process Featuring interviews and data drawn from migrants working and living in Australia this book explores how the gender identity of men from non English speaking backgrounds is influenced by the experiences of migration and settlement in an English speaking culture across various cultural spheres such as work leisure family life and religion

Routledge International Handbook of Migration Studies Steven J. Gold,Stephanie J. Nawyn,2019-05-08 This revised and expanded second edition of Routledge International Handbook of Migration Studies provides a comprehensive basis for understanding the complexity and patterns of international migration Despite increased efforts to limit its size and consequences migration has wide ranging impacts upon social environmental economic political and cultural life in countries of origin and settlement Such transformations impact not only those who are migrating but those who are left behind as well as those who live in the areas where migrants settle Featuring forty six essays written by leading international and multidisciplinary scholars this new edition showcases evolving research and theorizing around refugees and forced migrants new migration paths through Central Asia and the Middle East the condition of statelessness and South to South migration New chapters also address immigrant labor and entrepreneurship skilled migration ethnic succession contract labor and informal economies Uniquely among texts in the subject area the Handbook provides a six chapter compendium of methodologies for studying international migration and its impacts Written in a clear and direct style this Handbook offers a contemporary integrated resource for students and scholars from the perspectives of social science humanities journalism and other disciplines

A Selective Approach to Establishing a Human Rights Mechanism in Southeast Asia Hao Duy Phan, 2012-02-03 This book proposes a selective approach for states with more advanced human rights protection to establish a human rights court for Southeast Asia It argues the inclusive approach currently employed by ASEAN to set up a human rights body covering all member states cannot produce a strong regional human rights mechanism The mosaic of Southeast Asia reveals great diversity and high complexity in political regimes human rights practice and participation by regional states in the global legal human rights framework Cooperation among ASEAN members to protect and promote human rights remains limited The time honored principle of non interference and the ASEAN Way still predominate in relations within ASEAN These factors combine to explain why the ASEAN Intergovernmental Commission on Human Rights is unlikely to be strong and effective in changing and promoting regional human rights protection This book suggests a selective approach to establish a human rights court for Southeast Asia It posits that a group of nations within Southeast Asia may be more willing to consider the possibility of a stronger human rights mechanism It investigates the challenges to and the feasibility of such a proposal Furthermore it examines the design of the three existing regional human rights courts in Europe the Americas and Africa and compares the rationales for those institutional designs with the specific context of Southeast Asia A human rights court for all ASEAN members may not be possible at this time but a court for some nations in the region is feasible and worth exploring The path towards this goal is never an easy one however the region possesses the necessary conditions to gradually translate that goal into reality

Cumulated Index Medicus, 2000 Massively Parallel Globalization David C. Earnest, 2015-05-05 In this era of globalization people organize into fluid adaptive networks to solve complex problems and provide resources that nation states cannot Examples include the Grameen Bank mHealth and the Ushahidi open source software project Why do these networks succeed where nation states fail Only recently have social scientists developed tools to understand exactly how these complex networks self organize emerge adapt and solve collective problems Three of these tools agent based modeling social network analysis and evolutionary computing are converging in a field known as computational social science In this provocative book David C Earnest discusses how computational social science helps us understand massively parallel globalization Using explorations of global systems ranging from fisheries to banking Earnest illustrates the promise of computer models for explaining the surprises cascades and complexity that characterize global politics today These examples of massively parallel globalization contrast sharply with the hierarchical and inflexible governmental bureaucracies that are poorly suited to solve many of today s transnational and global challenges The Changing Face of Home Peggy Levitt, Mary C. Waters, 2002-12-12 The children of immigrants account for the fastest growing segment of the U S population under eighteen years old one out of every five children in the United States Will this generation of immigrant children follow the path of earlier waves of immigrants and gradually assimilate into mainstream American life or does the global nature of the contemporary world mean that the trajectory of today s immigrants will be fundamentally different Rather than severing their ties to their home countries many immigrants today sustain economic political and religious ties to their homelands even as they work vote and pray in the countries that receive them The Changing Face of Home is the first book to examine the extent to which the children of immigrants engage in such transnational practices Because most second generation immigrants are still young there is much debate among immigration scholars about the extent to which these children will engage in transnational practices in the future While the contributors to this volume find some evidence of transnationalism among the children of immigrants they disagree over whether these activities will have any long term effects Part I of the volume explores how the practice and consequences of transnationalism vary among different groups Contributors Philip Kasinitz Mary Waters and John Mollenkopf use findings from their large study of immigrant communities in New York City to show how both distance and politics play important roles in determining levels of transnational activity For example many Latin American and Caribbean immigrants are circular migrants spending much time in both their home countries and the United States while Russian Jews and Chinese immigrants have far less contact of any kind with their homelands In Part II the contributors comment on these findings offering suggestions for reconceptualizing the issue and bridging analytical differences In her chapter Nancy Foner makes valuable comparisons with past waves of immigrants as a way of understanding the conditions that may foster or mitigate transnationalism among today s immigrants The final set of chapters examines how home and host country value systems shape how second generation immigrants construct their identities and the economic social and political communities to which they ultimately express allegiance The Changing Face of Home presents an important first round of research and dialogue on the activities and identities of the second generation vis a vis their ancestral homelands and raises important questions for future research Global Political Economy Theodore H. Cohn, 2008 Praised for its authoritative coverage of theory and history Global Political Economy places the study of IPE in the broadest global context Written by one of the field s leading scholars this text helps students understand the fundamental importance of international political economy and make sense of current events in the global economy Its three areas of focus globalization North North relations and North South relations encourage students to connect theory and history with practice explore domestic and international economic interactions and examine the critical relationship between economic and security issues Chinese Transnational

Migration in the Age of Global Modernity Liangni Sally Liu,2018-01-17 The term circulatory transnational migration best describes the unconventional migratory route of many contemporary Chinese migrants that is an unfinished set of circulatory movements that these migrants engage in between the homeland and various host countries Return migration step migration to a third destination and the astronauting strategy are all included within this circulatory migration movement wherein returning to the country of origin does not always mean to settle back to the homeland permanently while step migration also does not necessarily mean to re migrate to a third destination country for a permanent purpose Liu takes a longitudinal perspective to study Chinese migrants transnational movements and looks at their transnational migratory movements as a family matter and progressive and dynamic process using New Zealand as a primary case study She examines Chinese migrants initial motives for immigrating to New Zealand the driving forces behind their adoption of a transnational lifestyle which includes leaving New Zealand to return to China moving to a third country typically Australia or commuting across borders family related considerations inter generational dynamics in transnational migration as well as their future movement intentions Liu also discusses Chinese migrants conceptualisation of home citizenship identity and sense of belonging to provide a deeper understanding of their transnational migratory experiences Global HR Peter Reilly,Tony Williams,2016-04-22 The HR function is having to adjust itself to the implications of the globalisation of business activity This has meant adjusting its philosophy policies and practices to fit new organisational imperatives as well as creating its own refashioned service delivery model Peter Reilly and Tony Williams s Global HR explores the key issues of building an international brand culture and talent pool whilst contributing to business and functional transformation drawing on examples from multinationals in telecoms fast moving consumer goods manufacturing software services and commodities In doing so they offer insights into managing people and businesses that no organization can ignore
