Wedekind,2023 In an era of Market Triumphalism this book follows the quest to address a myriad of prominent socio economic pathologies in Western democracies such as skyrocketing financial inequality marketization hereditary privileges as well as dysfunctional types of merit based justice without surrendering their liberal foundation altogether in favor of an entirely different political framework The author argues that classical liberalism should be regarded as a valuable doctrine worth keeping and that the liberal tradition is not inevitably destined to succumb into the neoliberal and increasingly plutocratic as well as nepotistic manifestation responsible for the growing discontentment with the liberal order during the past approximately four decades Instead the meritocratic promise inherent to classical liberalism must be taken more serious as a principle of justice and efficiency which in turn should be instrumentalized as an imperative for the provision of substantially greater equality of opportunity The argument culminates in an advocacy for significantly higher levels of state regulations for example via taxation to make higher education accessible to all sufficiently talented students independent of their family background based on the claim that such interventions are justified if they bring about the levelled playing field necessary to a genuine meritocracy Correspondingly the author proposes policies more frequently associated with the postulates of social welfare egalitarians however he does so exclusively from within the pond of classical liberal principles

Lost in the USA Deborah Gray White,2017-03-09 Remembered as an era of peace and prosperity turn of the millennium America was also a time of mass protest But the political demands of the marchers seemed secondary to an urgent desire for renewal and restoration felt by people from all walks of life Drawing on thousands of personal testimonies Deborah Gray

White explores how Americans sought better ways of living in and dealing with a rapidly changing world From the Million Man Million Woman and Million Mom Marches to the Promise Keepers and LGBT protests White reveals a people lost in their own country Mass gatherings offered a chance to bond with like minded others against a relentless tide of loneliness and isolation By participating individuals opened a door to self discovery that energized their quests for order autonomy personal meaning and fellowship in a society that seemed hostile to such deeper human needs Moving forward in time White also shows what marchers found out about themselves and those gathered around them The result is an eye opening reconsideration of a defining time in contemporary America
