

THE PROP BUILDER'S MASK-MAKING HANDBOOK

Since prehistoric times, man has used masks to express himself in ritual, drama, and religion. Many traditional dramatic works, especially those of Asia and Europe, rely heavily on masks to characterize and express the persona of the actor. There has been little published material available, however, to guide technicians assigned the task of creating the masks for theatrical production.

Thurston James, veteran Properties Master of the UCLA Theater Department, has written The Prop Builder's Mask-Making Handbook for prop builders, costume designers, and actors (professional and amateur) who intend to use a mask or masks to enhance a stage play or other presentation.

James explores the entire scope of mask-making: choosing a mask-making material; making a life mask; designing a neutral mask; character masks; leather masks and the commedia dell'arte; decorating, dyeing, and painting masks...and much more. The author recently participated in a workshop given by master mask-makers in Padua, Italy. His observations are recorded here in an extensive exploration of leather mask-making.

In addition to the techniques used with leather, the book covers molding and casting from an alginate life mask; mixing and using plaster; and mask-making with many other materials: papier-mâché, liquid latex rubber, neoprene casting rubber, gypsum cement, vacuum-formed styrene, thermoplastic orthopedic mesh, Celastic, and glue cloth. More than 350 photographs illustrate the procedures explained in the text. An appendix includes a list of supplier sources, a glossary, and a bibliography.

The author of The Theater Props Handbook and The Prop Builder's Molding and Casting Handbook, Thurston James lives in Sherman Oaks, California.
