Framo, Timothy T. Weber, Felise B. Levine, 2013-08-21 Coming Home Again is a compelling case study a single family that underwent family of origin therapy presented by one of the earliest and best known pioneers in the field This book is unique in its presentation of the two dimensions of the therapeutic experience that of the therapist and that of the clients Framo and Levine serve as the therapy team while Weber and his family are the clients in these two specialized intense brief intervention sessions that occurred one year apart The transcripts of the sessions are supported by commentary from both therapists as well as insights from Weber the client who brings to bear clinical knowledge and knowledge of himself and his family The underlying story the story of the therapists is almost as compelling as the family s story It is a candid honest look at family of origin therapy from those who partook in the sessions The Wiley-Blackwell Handbook of Family Psychology James H. Bray,Mark

Stanton,2012-07-23 The Handbook of Family Psychology provides a comprehensive overview of the theoretical underpinnings and established practices relating to family psychology Provides a thorough orientation to the field of family psychology for clinicians Includes summaries of the most recent research literature and clinical interventions for specific areas of interest to family psychology clinicians Features essays by recognized experts in a variety of specialized fields Suitable as a required text for courses in family psychology family therapy theories of psychotherapy couples therapy systems theory and systems therapy The Couple, Marriage, and Family Practitioner Stephen V. Marginalisation and Aggression from Bullying to Genocide Stephen James Minton, 2016-09-26 In this book the author proposes the existence of a continuum of aggressive marginalisation phenomena ranging from the unfortunately commonplace experiences of prejudice discrimination and bullying behaviour through to genocide Attempts made by researchers and practitioners to understand counter and prevent bullying behaviour are reviewed A key finding has been that the success that has been accrued has been limited especially when the case of those who belong to so called minority groups who are often the target of prejudice outside of the school gates is considered it is suggested that future anti bullying actions should meaningfully engage with prejudice as an underlying factor After a critical consideration of the various psychological understandings of aggression aggressive behaviour and marginalisation has been made the author goes on to introduce and assess an eight stage model of physical genocide based primarily on insights from social cognitive psychology and exemplified in the history of the Lakota Cheyenne Campaign 1864 1890 This is followed by a consideration of the cultural genocide levelled against indigenous peoples exemplified in the Sami people in Norway and indigenous peoples of North America as implemented through the actions of educational systems and educators The book ends with some suggestions being made regarding our potential to address the

One and Other mindset that is proposed as underlying the continuum of aggressive marginalisation phenomena through the psychological understandings that we can offer the educational practice that we can provide and in the conscious acts of the affirmation of humanity we can make in our individual and collective choices Stephen James Minton is a lecturer in the psychology of education at the School of Education Trinity College Dublin Ireland He has extensive experience in the fields of anti bullying research and practice and is interested in the histories and psychosocial situations and especially the educational experiences of marginalised people and groups families that will give professionals concrete tools to work with clients of their own Anxious China Li Zhang, 2020-08-04

The breathless pace of China's economic reform has brought about deep ruptures in socioeconomic structures and people's inner landscape. Faced with increasing market-driven competition and profound social changes, more and more middle-class urbanites are turning to Western-style psychological counseling to grapple with their mental distress. This book offers an in-depth ethnographic account of how an unfolding inner revolution is reconfiguring selfhood, psyche, family dynamics, sociality, and the mode of governing in post-socialist times. Li Zhang shows that anxiety, broadly construed in both medical and social terms, has become a powerful indicator for the general pulse of contemporary Chinese society. It is in this particular context that Zhang traces how a new psychotherapeutic culture takes root, thrives, and transforms itself across a wide range of personal, social, and political domains.
