Sentencing in International Criminal Law Silvia D'Ascoli, 2011-04-01 This book deals with sentencing in international criminal law focusing on the approach of the UN ad hoc Tribunals for the former Yugoslavia ICTY and Rwanda ICTR In contrast to sentencing in domestic jurisdictions and in spite of its growing importance sentencing law is a part of international criminal law that is still under construction and is unregulated in many aspects International sentencing law and practice is not yet defined by exact norms and principles and as yet there is no body of international principles concerning the determination of sentence notwithstanding the huge volume of sentencing research and the extensive modern debate about sentencing principles Moreover international judges receive very little guidance in sentencing matters this contributes to inconsistencies and may increase the risk that similar cases will be sentenced in different ways One purpose of this book is to investigate and evaluate the process of international sentencing especially as interpreted by the ICTY and the ICTR and to suggest a more comprehensive and coherent system of guiding principles which will foster the development of a law of sentencing for international criminal justice The book discusses the law and jurisprudence of the ad hoc Tribunals and also presents an empirical analysis of influential factors and other data from ICTY and ICTR sentencing practice thus offering quantitative support for the doctrinal analysis This publication is one of the first to be entirely devoted to the process of sentencing in international criminal justice The book will thus be of great interest to practitioners academics and students of the subject

Crime and Punishment in Twentieth Century Ireland Seamus Breathnach, 2005 This book was written as part of a much wider criminological enterprise designed at creating a real and critical basis for criminological enquiry in Ireland Properly understood the Criminal Justice System CJS is every bit as important to society as the circular flow of money No government would dream of conducting its business without the advice of an economist or indeed providing an econometric model of the economy Yet when it comes to the CJS governments take the opposite view and legislate in the dark hardly reconnoitering for a moment to see what effect proposed legislation will have on the several institutions it invariably affects Maybe this was okay when those effects could not be calculated But such is no longer the case In 1967 a President's Commission on Law Enforcement and the Administration of Justice featured a model of criminal justice entitled The Challenge of Crime in a Free Society Incredibly misunderstood and widely neglected this model marked a breakthrough the first step as it were in coming to terms with the multiple agencies that go to make up what has come to be called the Criminal Justice System CJS In Volumes 2 and 3 of the present series Seamus Breathnach traces the initial steps necessary to complete the revolution begun by the President's Commission In doing this he reveals the systematized neglect of the CJS in the Republic of Ireland for years 1950-80 In eight lectures he delineates the Republic's inability to get its act together or to engage the terms or significance of the 67 landmark an inability that is anchored both in a deep religious resistance to the secular social sciences as well as an exaggerated estimation of the criminal lawyer as social commentator From this study it appears that the first step for criminologists is to see the CJS as a totality to see it as a social process clamoring to be rescued from the spokesmen of the discrete agencies that comprise it
