Les Livres de L'année, 1927 The Intersecting Realities and Fictions of Virginia Woolf and Colette Helen Southworth, 2004 What might the author of Mrs Dalloway and A Room of One s Own have in common with the author of the Claudine series and The Pure and the Impure Resisting long held interpretations that Colette and Virginia Woolf had little in common Southworth shows here the links between the two famous writers both real and imagined Often cast in their diametrically opposed roles of elitist bluestocking and risque music hall performer critics have overlooked the many ways in which the lives and works of Woolf and Colette intersect This study provides a broad ranging introduction to the biographical stylistic and thematic ties that link the lives and works of Britain s and France s first ladies of letters of the early twentieth century Situating the two writers within an international network of artists and literati including Jacques Emile Blanche Radclyffe Hall and Una Troubridge Winnie de Polignac Gisele Freund Sylvia Beach and Adrienne Monnier Vita Sackville West and Violet Trefusis this study complicates conceptions of the differences national sexual cultural and intellectual which have kept these two women apart by placing these same differences at its center Southworth develops work already undertaken on Woolf s contacts with France and adds to the body of comparative work on Woolf and her contemporaries This study also highlights as yet unexplored connections between Colette and her British and American peers Southworth s book makes a significant contribution to gay and lesbian studies and the study of modernist culture It also demonstrates the potential of social network theory for literary studies

Colette Nicole Ward Jouve, 1987 Though Colette s novels have been thought sentimental and she herself has earned a certain notoriety as a decadent sensualist Nicole Ward Jouve argues that we need to look closely at Colette s work again and with the hindsight of feminist theory to rediscover that inimitable talent for the inscription of sensual and familial pleasure

Sept dialogues de bêtes Colette, 1913 Animal Attractions Catherine Anne Bordeau, 1993 The notion of women s connection to nature had significant consequences for conceptions of female authority in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Many have noted that nineteenth century evolutionism generally reaffirms women s exclusion from men s intellectual endeavors by characterizing female intelligence as animalistic What has not been adequately appreciated however is that the concept of female animality entails an identification of women with the natural milieu regarded as a metamorphosing influence The milieu emerges as a model of female authority not only in Lamarck and Darwin but in other naturalist works describing women s bodily odor as a seductive atmosphere capable of revitalizing transforming and dominating men This dissertation examines the relationship between masculine intellect and feminine animality as models of authority in post Darwinian works Zola s naturalist novels develop the ideological dimensions of these gendered models of authority. The conflict between men's claim of intellectual and spiritual superiority and the transformative influence of animalistic women emerges as a struggle between hierarchism and egalitarianism. These novels also reveal that women's natural influence consists of an ability to manipulate the discourse on which hierarchies depend. Rachilde's Monsieur Venus, La marquise de Sade, and L'animale pose the problem of how an animalistic woman may assume the status of an intellectual. Rachilde's feline heroines employ their metamorphosing powers in a calculating manner; they become masculine aesthetes or philosophers largely by feminizing men. However, these novels also evoke the limitations of the intellectual's mastery and idealize submissive characters whose purely atmospheric influence is more transforming. Colette wrote in a post-decadent literary climate promoting a return to nature. While this naturist movement was conducive to women's writing, Claudine's en va Douze, Dialogues de bêtes, and La retraite sentimentale reflect the difficulty of reconciling the innocence and instinctual intelligence valued by naturists with the virile intellect attributed to the writer. These works adopt decadent paradigms of women's feline mastery while revealing the limits of such authority. La retraite sentimentale in particular underscores the gap between two female figures: the dominating intellectual Earth goddess and the sensual woman whose animality consists in subverting such mastery.
