Sergeant Death:

Death Work Vincent E. Henry, 2004-04-01 In this fascinating new book Vincent Henry a 21 year veteran of the NYPD who recently retired to become a university professor explores the psychological transformations and adaptations that result from police officers encounters with death Police can encounter death frequently in the course of their duties and these encounters may range from casual contacts with the deaths of others to the most profound and personally consequential confrontations with their own mortality Using the survivor psychology model as its theoretical base this insightful and provocative research ventures into a previously unexplored area of police psychology to illuminate and explore the new modes of adaptation thought and feeling that result from various types of death encounters in police work The psychology of survival asserts that the psychological world of the survivor one who has come in close physical or psychic contact with death but nevertheless managed to live is characterized by five themes psychic numbing death guilt the death imprint suspicion of counterfeit nurturance and the struggle to make meaning These themes become manifest in the survivor's behavior permeating his or her lifestyle and worldview Drawing on extensive interviews with police officers in five nominal categories rookie officers patrol sergeants crime scene technicians homicide detectives and officers who survived a mortal combat situation in which an assailant or another officer died Henry identifies the impact such death encounters have upon the individual the police organization and the occupational culture of policing He has produced a comprehensive and highly textured interpretation of police psychology and police behavior bolstered by the unique insights that come from his personal experience as an officer his intimate familiarity with the subtleties and nuances of the police culture's value and belief systems and his meticulous research and rigorous method Death Work provides a unique prism through which to view the individual organizational and social dynamics of contemporary urban policing With a foreword by Robert Jay Lifton and a chapter devoted to the local police response to the World Trade Center attacks Death Work will be of interest to psychologists and criminal justice experts as well as police officers eager to gain insight into their unique relationship to death

Death of a Young Lieutenant B.R. Stateham, 2023-02-24 Jake Reynolds is an art thief A master artist who can create an exact replica of any famous canvas in intricate detail So precise and elegant is his work that even today hanging on the walls of the most prestigious museums and art galleries around the world are some of his brilliant recreations It's the early 20th century and this brilliant criminal is destined to rub shoulders with the famous and infamous From Churchill to Mengele Wright brothers to Picasso In one fashion or another he would know them all But for a lucky and daring man Jake is plagued with one unlucky debilitating weakness Every time he stumbles upon the corpse of a murder victim a peculiar sense of outrage takes over him Even though he's a criminal himself something within him rebels at the thought of a murderer getting away after committing such a heinous crime Compelled by this Jake is determined to find any killer that comes across his way and bring them to justice And when they do Jake has no choice The hunt is on Whoever said Fate smiled upon the

1890 as a small 5x8 sheet It soon expanded to a traditional size but later suspended publication because the profit margin was too slim No issues from that time were available for review After a while McCormack kept a promise to the people of Leighton and renewed publication of the News in 1894 Each issue was examined column by column with a view for capturing items of a genealogical interest such as reports of births marriages deaths and obituaries In addition other clippings were transcribed having to do with the history of Colbert and Lawrence County as well as the rest of the surrounding Tennessee Valley area Publisher s description Told by the Death's Head Mór Jókai,1908 Told by the Death's Head Mór Jókai, The hero of our romantic narrative or better narratives was a constable Not one of that useful class appointed in our day to direct the vehicles which pass over the two approaches to the suspension bridge in Budapest rather he was the chief of a body whose task it is to provoke disturbance who win all the more praise and glory the greater the havoc and destruction they create In a word he was a gunner The chronicle of his exploits gives only his Christian name which was Hugo In the year 1688 when the French beleaguered Coblenz Hugo had charge of the battery in the outermost tower of Ehrenbreitstein fortress the Montalembert Tower Coblenz and Ehrenbreitstein are opposite one another on the banks of the Rhine as are Pesth and Ofen and the Blocksberg looks down on us as does the citadel of Ehrenbreitstein on Coblenz The city which is strongly fortified on all sides had become accustomed to being beleaguered now by the French now by the Prussians today by the Austrians tomorrow by the Swedes On the occasion of which I write Coblenz was under a terrible fire from the French guns which created great havoc in that portion of the city known as the Old Town Explorations Into the World of Lewis and Clark V-3 of 3 Robert A. Declensions of the Self Jean-Jacques Defert,Trevor Tchir,Dan Webb,2009-10-02 This work is a collective reflection on the modern self as a narrative Modernity as a metamorphic conglomeration of permeating discourses new practices and institutional forms a historical unfolding of centrifugal and centripetal discursive dynamics of regulation and normalization offers limitless grounds for a critical investigation The modern self both as the revelation of the inner self and as a reflection of the collective arises from the dialogical interplay within the intersubjective communicative space of social discourse The bestiary proposed in this series of articles attempts to rethink the spectacle consisting of modern dichotomies by which the self is declined along ontological metaphysical and ethical premises the real and the ideal the said and the unsaid the rational and the irrational the bound and the free the familiar and the exotic the universal and the particular self and world The reader is therefore encouraged to engage in a multiple reading of the articles presented in this collection As individual scholarly pieces of inquiry these articles provide thoughtful insights into the inexhaustible topic of modernity and the modern subject they tell stories of the past the present and of a prospective future As academic works however they also reflect and or unsettle disciplinary paradigms and scholarly practices from which they acquire legitimacy and visibility they conform apply reconfigure and or experiment with new grounds by borrowing from an eclectic mix of various thinkers their tools and their axiomatic propositions that constitute their theoretical and critical apparatus This exercise is ultimately an introspective journey in which we are placed not only as the spectator the one who gazes through the bars but also the spectacle the beast subject to the gaze finding itself in a predicament of which the subject itself is the architect CODE OF VIRGINIA, 1849

,1849 Dartford in the Great War Stephen Wynn,2016-01-31 Dartford was a hive of activity during the Great War years with most in the community doing their bit for the war effort in what ever way that they could For men that meant enlisting in the armed forces and for women that they were to take up roles that previously belonged to men They worked in industry delivered post drove buses and taxis and became carpenters and plumbers They were also heavily relied on by volunteer organizations such as Voluntary Aid Detachments the Women s Auxiliary Army Corps and later in the war the Women s Land Army Nearby there was a large munitions factory in the town which maintained a large yet productive mostly female workforce to ensure it met the ever increasing demand for shells and bullets and throughout the town hospitals to cared for the wounded servicemen of Britain Australia America and even Germany whose captured military personnel were held at one of many local prisoner of war camps Joyce Green Aerodrome was home to units of the Royal Flying Corps and latterly the Royal Air Force who protected both Dartford and London from air raids This book cover how Dartford endured thirty seven German air raids Miraculously not one local resident was killed At the end of the war the people of Dartford returned to the normality of life as best as they could but the world had changed forever For those who had lost loved ones and over 300 local families had the changes would always be a painful reminder of the terrible price of the war Dartford in the Great War is a meticulous and compelling account of this town and its dedicated people who sacrificed so much in their effort to thrive in one history s most difficult periods English Letters and Indian Literacies Hilary E. Wyss,2012-07-17 As rigid and unforgiving as the boarding schools established for the education of Native Americans could be the intellectuals who engaged with these schools including Mohegans Samson Occom and Joseph Johnson and Montauketts David and Jacob Fowler in the eighteenth century and Cherokees Catharine and David Brown in the nineteenth became passionate advocates for Native community as a political and cultural force From handwriting exercises to Cherokee Syllabary texts Native students negotiated a variety of pedagogical practices and technologies using their hard won literacy skills for their own purposes By examining the materials of literacy primers spellers ink paper and instructional manuals as well as the products of literacy letters journals confessions reports and translations English Letters and Indian Literacies explores the ways boarding schools were for better or worse a radical experiment in cross cultural communication Focusing on schools established by New England missionaries first in southern New England and later among the Cherokees Hilary E Wyss explores both the ways this missionary culture attempted to shape and define Native literacy and the Native response to their efforts. She examines the tropes of readerly Indians: passive and grateful recipients of an English cultural model and writerly Indians: those fluent in the colonial culture but also committed to Native community as a political and cultural concern. To develop a theory of literacy and literate practice that complicates and enriches the study of Native self-expression, Wyss's literary readings of archival sources, published works, and correspondence incorporate methods from gender studies, the history of the book, indigenous intellectual history, and transatlantic American studies.
