On The City Physical Pattern Social St:

The Criminology of Place David Weisburd, Elizabeth R. Groff, Sue-Ming Yang, 2012-10-01 The study of crime has focused primarily on why particular people commit crime or why specific communities have higher crime levels than others In The Criminology of Place David Weisburd Elizabeth Groff and Sue Ming Yang present a new and different way of looking at the crime problem by examining why specific streets in a city have specific crime trends over time Based on a 16 year longitudinal study of crime in Seattle Washington the book focuses our attention on small units of geographic analysis micro communities defined as street segments Half of all Seattle crime each year occurs on just 5 6 percent of the city s street segments yet these crime hot spots are not concentrated in a single neighborhood and street by street variability is significant Weisburd Groff and Yang set out to explain why The Criminology of Place shows how much essential information about crime is inevitably lost when we focus on larger units like neighborhoods or communities Reorienting the study of crime by focusing on small units of geography the authors identify a large group of possible crime risk and protective factors for street segments and an array of interventions that could be implemented to address them The Criminology of Place is a groundbreaking book that radically alters traditional thinking about the crime problem and what we should do about it

The Urban Vernacular in Southeast Asia Nor Zalina Harun, Shireen Jahn Kassim, 2025-05-16 This book constructs a number of discourses dialectics and analyses across the disciplines of urban form architecture and urban experience thus incorporating both conservation and design issues It bridges the gap between practice and theory by reconstructing the role of the village or vernacular in the discourses and trends of the twenty first century post Covid19 environment Bringing together for the first time the confluences of theory and practice in the urban vernacular and the urban village the contributors use vernacular concepts and settings as a common framework serving as cultural bridges connecting traditional forms ecologies and habitats to new global ideas industrial economies and access to developing urban sustainability design planning and services in Asia s rising megacities The book begins with concerns of urban layout and morphology aiming to establish discourse shared principles and terminology around conventional ideas of the village or traditional settlements apparently organic and disordered nature It then moves into architectural dimensions capturing formal cases of how the vernacular or traditional indigenous local concepts have inspired new ideas in award winning architecture and hence the importance of re examining the vernacular in light of the ongoing need to produce a more sustainable and place conscious fit in modern architecture and urban planning The book will be of interest to researchers in the fields of architecture urban planning and design urban geography design studies landscape architecture history of architecture urbanism and Asian Studies in particular those concerning Southeast Asia

Physical Space and Spatiality in Muslim Societies Mahbub Rashid, 2021-08-10 Mahbub Rashid embarks on a fascinating journey through urban space in all of its physical and social aspects using the theories of Foucault Bourdieu Lefebvre and others to explore how consumer capitalism colonialism and power disparity consciously shape cities Using two Muslim cities as case studies Algiers Ottoman French and Zanzibar Ottoman British Rashid shows how Western perceptions can only view Muslim cities through the lens of colonization a lens that distorts both physical and social space Is it possible he asks to find a useable urban past in a timeline broken by colonization He concludes that political economy may be less relevant in premodern cities that local variation is central to the understanding of power that cities engage more actively in social reproduction than in production that the manipulation of space is the exercise of power that all urban space is a conscious construct and is therefore not inevitable and that consumer capitalism is taking over everyday life Ultimately we reconstruct a present from a fragmented past through local struggles against the homogenizing power of abstract space

Experimental Methods for Social Policy Research George W. Fairweather,Louis G. Tornatzky,2013-10-22 Experimental Methods for Social Policy Research explains how experimental methods can be used in social policy research to help solve contemporary human problems and to preserve and improve the world's physical and social climates This book argues that scientists can make a major contribution to the solution of social problems by aiding the society in incorporating scientific methods into the social decision making process Two principal methods required for solving social problems are highlighted methods for evaluating social models aimed at solving particular problems and methods for disseminating those models that are beneficial to the state the region and the nation This book is comprised of 14 chapters and begins with the argument that contemporary social policy decision making is inadequate for the late 20th and 21st centuries It then defines the basic ingredients for an adequate social policy decision making apparatus and explains how it can be accomplished The next chapter outlines the basic parameters of social models and dissemination processes from a conceptual point of view The remaining chapters describe general experimental procedures from the inception of the ideas to the implementation of social models found to be beneficial The final chapter is reserved for a discussion of a proposed center for experimental social innovation that would provide research and training This monograph will be a valuable resource for social scientists and researchers as well as social policymakers public officials and citizens who are committed to the improvement of living conditions for all members of society

AFPTRC-TN. ,1957 The physical environment and health: Implications for the planning and management of healthy cities Linchuan Yang,Bao-Jie He,Long Cheng,Yibin Ao,Ruoyu Wang,2023-08-30 Civic Affairs ,1958 Epistemological Bias in the Physical & Social Sciences Abdelwahab M. Elmessiri,2006-01-01 The question of bias in methodology and terminology is a problem that faces researchers east west north and south however it faces Third World intellectuals with special keenness For although they write in a cultural environment that has its own specific conceptual and cultural paradigms they nevertheless encounter a foreign paradigm which attempts to impose itself upon their society and upon their very imagination and thoughts When the term developmental psychology for instance is used in the West Arab scholars also say developmental psychology when applied psychology is mentioned they hurry to use the same term etc Why not establish a new science with its own mechanisms methodologies and points of reference to deal with epistemological biases and open up the gate of ijtiḥād with respect to them This collection of papers aims to discover some of the biases latent in our terminology methodologies research tools and conceptual principles and to propose alternative ones marked by a greater degree of independence and neutrality This is not to belittle the human value of the West's creative contributions but to emphasize the danger of making it the ultimate point of reference and then trying to continuously play catch up with it
