On Training To Be A Therapist The Long And Winding Road To Qualification:

On Training To Be A Therapist John Karter, 2002-10 Having become aware during his own training of the enormous and varied pressures that students of psychotherapy and counselling have to face often without any real source of support the author seeks to explore the professional and personal difficulties anxieties emotions and pitfalls engendered by this unique and often destabilizing process from what he terms a student's eye view Trainees frequently feel overwhelmed by an exhausting round of studying clinical placements supervision and personal therapy and are often engaged in a juggling act between training family and work The fundamental objective of the book is to confront and to ameliorate these demands and difficulties and to highlight the fact that therapy training can and should be an enjoyable and fulfilling process in itself Among the many issues looked at are the ways in which training can change us as people how it can affect our personal relationships the dangers of adhering too strictly to theory the terrors of essay writing difficult issues with clients such as unplanned contact and sexuality making the most of supervision personal therapy and many more On Training to be a Therapist has been designed for use as a standard text on training courses at all levels It is aimed principally at psychotherapy and counselling students but will also appeal to qualified practitioners tutors and supervisors looking for a different perspective

Counselling Skills For Dummies Gail Evans, 2010-12-07 Whether you are considering becoming a counsellor have to provide some form of counselling as part of your job or are simply interested in communicating well Counselling Skills For Dummies provides the perfect introduction to the practical basics of counselling Starting with a thorough guide to the qualities knowledge and skills needed to become a listening helper the book goes on to provide a framework for a counselling session helping you to successfully manage a potentially daunting process It illustrates how you can create a positive relationship between listener and speaker and how asking the right questions is so important to the progression of that relationship It also shows how you can better understand yourself which is a crucial step in ensuring that you break down your own barriers to listening

Experiences of Counsellor Training Val Harding-Davies, Kathy Hunt, Geof Alred, Graham Davies, 2004-05-14 An anthology of essays written by contributors shortly after completing initial counselling and psychotherapy training Contributors describe their experiences the challenges and surprises of training and changes they underwent Each chapter begins with an abstract summarizing its main themes and the concluding chapter discusses the personal and professional significance of training A valuable resource for trainees and trainers offering a context within which trainees can set their own experience and guidance for surviving and thriving as a trainee

Autoethnographies in Psychology and Mental Health Alec Grant, Jerome Carson, 2024-09-30 This autoethnographic volume gathers a multiplicity of different voices in autoethnographic research from across psychology and mental health disciplines to address topics ranging from selfhood trauma emotional understanding clinical psychology and the experience of grief Edited by two leading figures this volume broadens the concept of psychology beyond its conventional mainstream academic boundaries and challenges pre conceived and received notions of what constitutes psychology and mental health This book collects new autoethnographic writers in psychology and mental health from across as diverse a range of disciplines and in doing so makes a strong case for the legitimacy of subjectivity emotionality and lived experience as epistemic and pedagogic resources The collection also troubles the related concept of mental health In contemporary times this is either biomedically over colonised welcomed by some but resisted by others often regarded by lay and professional people alike in terms of an ordered or disordered binary comforting for some but associated with stigma and othering for others or at worst is reduced to a set of hackneyed memes the stuff of Breakfast television well intentioned and undoubtedly reassuring and helpful for some but patronising and naïve for others Overall the volume promotes the subjective and lived experiential voices of its contributors the hallmark of autoethnographic writing Autoethnographies in Psychology and Mental Health will be of interest to psychology and mental health students and professionals with an interest in qualitative inquiry as it intersects with autoethnography and mental health

Listening to Less-Heard Voices Peter Madsen Gubi, 2015-04-06 This book is written in order to enhance practice and understanding in Counselling and allied helping professions and the contributors are all qualified Counsellors

A World of Difference? Marilyn Osborn, Patricia Broadfoot, Elizabeth McNess, Birte Ravn, Claire Planel, Pat Triggs, 2003-10-01 This fascinating volume compares the experience of young learners in England France and Denmark in order to examine the relationship between national educational cultures individual biographies and classroom practices in creating the context for learning It explores how secondary schools in three very different education systems work to develop the aptitudes and attitudes conducive to lifelong learning in conditions of complexity uncertainty and multiple change By drawing upon a rich data set including questionnaires individual and group interviews and classroom observation the book gives a voice to young learners in the three countries Through detailed case studies and quotations it examines their concerns with schooling with teachers with motivation and achievement and explores the very different social contexts which influence their engagement with learning This book will be an essential resource for researchers practitioners students and policy makers and all those committed to understanding the relationship between culture and learning and to improving secondary education

Schapira, 2002-05-03 Takes the reader through all the stages of the therapeutic training path looking at everything from starting a course to employment prospects Informative and realistic Making of a Therapist Louis J. Cozolino, 2004-06-29 Lessons from the personal experience and reflections of a therapist The difficulty and cost of training psychotherapists properly is well known It is far easier to provide a series of classes while ignoring the more challenging personal components of training Despite the fact that the therapist's self insight emotional maturity and calm centeredness are critical for successful psychotherapy rote knowledge and technical skills are the focus of most training programs As a result the therapist's personal growth is either marginalized or ignored The Making of a Therapist counters this trend by offering graduate students and beginning therapists a personal account of this important inner journey Cozolino provides a unique look inside the mind and heart of an experienced therapist Readers will find an exciting and privileged window into the experience of the therapist who like themselves is just starting out In addition The Making of a Therapist contains the practical advice common sense wisdom and self disclosure that practicing professionals have found to be the most helpful during their own training The first part of the book Getting Through Your First Sessions takes readers through the often perilous days and weeks of conducting initial sessions with real clients Cozolino addresses such basic concerns as Do I need to be completely healthy myself before I can help others What do I do if someone comes to me with an issue or problem I can't handle What should I do if I have trouble listening to my clients What if a client scares me The second section of the book Getting to Know Your Clients delves into the routine of therapy and the subsequent stages in which you continue to work with clients and help them In this context Cozolino presents the notion of the good enough therapist one who can surrender to his or her own imperfections while still guiding the therapeutic relationship to a positive outcome The final section Getting to Know Yourself goes to the core of the therapist's relation to him or herself addressing such issues as How to turn your weaknesses into strengths and how to deal with the complicated issues of pathological caretaking countertransference and self care Both an excellent introduction to the field as well as a valuable refresher for the experienced clinician The Making of a Therapist offers readers the tools and insight that make the journey of becoming a therapist a rich and rewarding experience On Becoming a Psychotherapist: The Personal and Professional Journey Robert H. Klein, Harold S. Bernard, Victor L. Schermer, 2011-01-28 Psychotherapists have long debated about the personal and educational experiences that best prepare one for success in their profession Does some precise combination of genetic endowment and training enable one to thrive as a psychotherapist Are early experiences important What about the psychotherapist's own psychotherapy These are issues of significance not only to mental health professionals but also to those who rely on the quality of their services On Becoming a Psychotherapist explores how psychotherapists develop as practitioners through both professional training and the training that can only be obtained through personal experience Drawing on the expertise of acknowledged leaders in the field each chapter examines a particular set of personal experiences or educational pursuits that impacts psychotherapist development and practice Among those considered are the relevant life events of psychotherapists that occur both prior to undertaking clinical work and as their careers evolve the importance of supervision and mentoring the contribution of one's personal treatment experiences the incorporation of research findings into one's therapeutic approach and the socio economic and cultural contexts that influence therapist development Shedding light on how these components are effectively organized and integrated into professional practice the book addresses current controversies that surround what constitutes the optimal set of experiences and characteristics for the developing psychotherapist The result is a vital resource for directors of training clinical supervisors and psychotherapists interested in understanding how and why they have become the clinicians they are today This carefully designed and thoughtfully integrated volume brings together recognized experts who draw on their rich clinical experience and on relevant research to illuminate diverse aspects of psychotherapist training and development Valuable and highly recommended this is worthwhile for anyone engaged in selecting teaching supervising and mentoring therapists prepared to meet the challenges of contemporary clinical practice

David E Orlinsky Ph D Professor Department of Comparative Human Development University of Chicago Past president of the Society for Psychotherapy Research and co author of How Psychotherapists Develop and The Psychotherapist's Own Psychotherapy Brilliantly and passionately conceived this survey of the main parameters of becoming a psychotherapist is both comprehensive and erudite An appreciation of the importance of traumatic experience in the lives of both patient and therapist suffuses the entire volume which is skillfully constructed for students and their teachers as well as their patients

Earl Hopper Ph D Institute of Group Analysis London This is a sophisticated yet very readable book which carefully focuses on what it takes to become a skilful and successful psychotherapist The authors represent an experienced group of clinicians who are well known in the professional literature for their writings and well known in their clinical settings for their expertise as therapists and supervisors They have a wealth of valuable information and experiences to share about becoming a psychotherapist For the reader who wishes to learn more about the interesting process of becoming a psychotherapist this book is an excellent resource

William E Piper Ph D Professor and Director of the Psychotherapy Program Department of Psychiatry University of British Columbia This volume takes a major step in elucidating who we as psychotherapists are Reading On Becoming a Psychotherapist stimulates a personal assessment of one's own psychotherapist self a useful endeavor for students and seasoned clinicians alike This masterful effort truly adds punch to the prodding for the reader to do a self assessment
