On The Wallaby:

On the Wallaby Nick Enright, 1980 Nick Enright's ebullient musical play inspired by the stories of homeless men on the wallaby who roamed Australian roads during the Great Depression traces the misfortunes of the O'Brien family waterside workers in Port Adelaide. The effect upon the family and the nation of eight years of unemployment, birth separation strikes and subsistence are seen in the light of the political strategies of the time. Intermingled with this story in song and dance is the death of the old music hall theatre and the rise of the age of mass communication. On the Wallaby Guy Boothby, 1894 P 185 186 Short account of the help of Aborigines in shipwreck Peruvian p 266 Black tracker in Bimera district p 285 286 Welford district said to be haunted because of savage fights p 297 Corroboree in Comongin district *Records ... Mountain Arapesh Margaret Mead, 2018-10-24 For approximately eight months during 1931-1932 anthropologist Margaret Mead lived with and studied the Mountain Arapesh, a segment of the population of the East Sepik Province, Papua New Guinea. She found a culture based on simplicity, sensitivity and cooperation. In contrast to the aggressive Arapesh who lived on the plains, both the men and the women of the mountain settlements were found to be in Mead's word, maternal. The Mountain Arapesh exhibited qualities that many might consider feminine: they were in general passive, affectionate and peace-loving. Though Mead partially explains the male's femininity as being due to the type of nourishment available to the Arapesh, she maintains social conditioning to be a factor in the type of lifestyle led by both sexes. Mead's study encapsulates all aspects of the Arapesh culture. She discusses betrothal and marriage customs, sexuality, gender roles, diet, religion, arts, agriculture and rites of passage. In possibly a portent for the breakdown of traditional roles and beliefs in the latter part of the twentieth century, Mead discusses the purpose of rites of passage in maintaining societal values and social control. Mead also discovered that both male and female parents took an active role in raising their children. Furthermore, it was found that there were few conflicts over property; the Arapesh having no concept of land ownership, maintained a peaceful existence with each other. In his new introduction to The Mountain Arapesh, Paul B. Roscoe assesses the importance of Mead's work in light of modern anthropological and ethnographic research as well as how it fits into her own canon of writings. Roscoe discusses findings he culled from a trip to Papua New Guinea in 1991 to clarify some ambiguities in Mead's work. His travels also served to help reconstruct what had happened to the Arapesh since Mead's historic visit in the early 1930s.

John Gould's Extinct and Endangered Mammals of Australia Dr. Fred Ford, 2014-10-01 How poignant it is to look at some of Gould's beautiful images of our animals and know that some are no longer with us and some are fighting for their lives. In this book, author Fred Ford compares Gould's world and the world that the animals live in at that time with the world today. John Gould's Extinct and Endangered Mammals of Australia includes 46 Australian mammal species that today are threatened or extinct and that were portrayed in the lavish colour plates in John Gould's 1863 publication The Mammals of Australia. Each animal opener spread begins with a Gould plate accompanied by 'At a Glance', a very short summary, the conservation status according to the EPBC (Environment Protection and Biodiversity Conservation) list, the species names, a map of its former and current distribution and sites of reintroduction and a timeline of the species' history since European colonisation. Accompanying the pictures are accounts of the animals as they lived in the relatively untouched Australia that John Gould knew and evidence of the attitudes of European settlers towards the native fauna. The author provides the reader with fascinating and often poignant material and stories of what would be considered today as shameful behaviour and attitudes towards Australia's native fauna In this book are not only sobering stories of the fate of these animals after Gould's time but also success stories of reintroducing species to places ridding areas of introduced pests and preserving habitat
