Den Dulk shows that the connection between these works lies in their shared philosophical dimension. On the one hand they portray excessive self reflection and endless irony as the two main problems of contemporary Western life. On the other hand the novels embody an attempt to overcome these problems: sincerity, reality, commitment and community are portrayed as the virtues needed to achieve a meaningful life. This shared philosophical dimension is analyzed by viewing the novels in light of the existentialist philosophies of Søren Kierkegaard, Jean Paul Sartre, Ludwig Wittgenstein and Albert Camus.

Juan Goytisolo Stanley Black, 2007. This collection of essays looks at the most recent work of Juan Goytisolo from a variety of perspectives and critical stances. The contributors all specialists in the work of the Spanish author employ theories of intertextuality, postmodernist irony, queer ethics and even the esoteric science of Hermeticism to uncover the complexities of Goytisolo's creative practice. In particular his radical blurring of the generic boundaries between fiction, autobiography and literary criticism. Such challenging of genre conventions is seen as both integral to the author's own questioning of his identity as an expression of his radical dissidence and essential to the response his work evokes in the reader. Life and writing, autobiography and fiction constitute the interconnecting poles of Goytisolo's artistic universe. The essays included in this volume explore the varying patterns of convergence of these twin strands in the writer's later work as a whole but particularly in novels such as Las semanas del jardín 1997 and Carajicomedia 2000. The essays are set in context by a contribution from Juan Goytisolo himself in which he sums up his philosophy of life and writing as a pursuit of non-protable knowledge.

The Persistence of Racialization Luz Angélica Kirschner, 2024-10-18. The Persistence of Racialization. Literature, Gender and Ethnicity represents an attempt at unpacking the legacy of modern ideas of race initiated and established during the conquest of the Americas and their current relevance for literary criticism of ethnic writing, also known as minority writing. The book challenges ideas of a post-racial globalized world to question the tendency to devalue ethnic literary writing in general and ethnic women's productions in particular by questioning reductive literary criticism of ethnic writing that perpetuates bias against ethnic writing and its authors. By advocating for a decolonial literary imagination the book urges literary critics of ethnic writing to consider the complexities of modern race and its enduring impact on contemporary social and cultural narratives. Updated literary analyses of Jewish, Argentine, Turkish, German and Chinese American women writers encourage literary critics of ethnic writing to explore alternative transnational frameworks that prioritize equity, diversity and social justice.
