Lisle,1922 The Optimist Dwight Estava,2012-03-08 Callum Eden is a hotshot financial executive who in time becomes an insatiable womaniser with a scorn for commitment and happy living life at the top of his game But one day having already woken up in a bad mood he is greeted by some bad news His life rapidly falls apart and he struggles to make sense of it all He is perplexed as to why hes experiencing such a dramatic contrast to his life He had everything going for him particularly in his career but he has to learn very quickly that there is no such thing as a perfect life Callum now faces a torrent of emotions that he struggles to cope with and feelings he is unable to express The accident the change to his fortune and his new allies sets him on a journey of mental and emotional self discovery In Callums opinion his own lack of concerns added to his fallen angel syndrome He redeems himself by learning to rely on action rather than imagination to steer himself out of his crisis However his interpretation is problematic because they cause a chain reaction His only comfort is his subconscious reality a place where he finds some form of sanity until actual reality resumes once again Thus he must try to establish a link between the two realities to find comfort and confidence in what he is experiencing His life changes and veers off course with compelling complexities and brutal and seemingly honest decisions Some of which are rewarded with quick fixes but results are above the pleasures of deeper self discovery Others are extremely deceptive with scenes of betrayal and corruption His biggest critic comes from an unusual source with whom he agrees in time may bring him closure But just when he thinks everything is fine the unexpected occurs An option arises that could give the impression of remoteness a distant hope but will it be to his advantage

The Reference Book John Hawthorne, David Manley, 2012-03-29 John Hawthorne and David Manley present an original treatment of the semantic phenomenon of reference and the cognitive phenomenon of singular thought In Part I they argue against the idea that either is tied to a special relation of causal or epistemic acquaintance Part II challenges the alleged semantic rift between definite and indefinite descriptions on the one hand and names and demonstratives on the other a division that has been motivated in part by appeals to considerations of acquaintance Drawing on recent work in linguistics and philosophical semantics Hawthorne and Manley explore a more unified account of all four types of expression according to which none of them paradigmatically fits the profile of a referential term On the preferred framework put forward in The Reference Book all four types of expression involve existential quantification but admit of uses that exhibit many of the traits associated with reference a phenomenon that is due to the presence of what Hawthorne and Manley call a singular restriction on the existentially quantified domain The book concludes by drawing out some implications of the proposed semantic picture for the traditional categories of reference and singular thought
